CONGRESS ASKS REVENGE

New Air Raids Seen By Some As Right Answer To Atrocities

WASHINGTON, April 22—A mounting wave of furious indignation swept the nation today over Japan's torture and execution of some of the eight captured American flyers who participated in Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's raid on Tokyo a year ago.

It appears that at least two and possibly three of the American flyers were executed on alleged charges of bombing non-military objectives and firing on civilians. Fate of the others is unknown beyond the fact that the Japanese government claims their sentence of death was commuted.

As the American government moved to establish responsibility for Japan's criminal violation of the rules of warfare, Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air forces, ordered every army flyer throughout the world to redouble his efforts toward wiping out the Japanese air force and destroying the "inhuman warlords" in reprisal for the execution of their "brave comrades."

Revenge Demanded

Congress also echoed with demands for revenge. The general opinion of a fighting-mad congress was that the most effective method of retaliation would be to strengthen America's forces in the Pacific so that this country's fighting men could avenge the torture and execution of the American flyers.

Some members of congress also expressed the hope that Japan's cities may soon be blasted by new air raids as America's answer to the cold-blooded murder of Gen. Doolittle's captured airmen.

That there would be further destruction heaped on Japan was evident in Gen. Arnold's emphatic designation of the attack on the Nipponese capital a year ago as "the first Tokyo raid." In his message, Gen. Arnold underlined the word, "first."

Airmen Warned
"Remember those comrades when you get a Zero in your sight—have their sacrifice before you when you line up your bombast on a Japanese base," Gen. Arnold told his men.

"Let your answer to their treatment of your comrades be the destruction of the Japanese air force, their lines of communication and the production centers which offer them opportunity to continue such atrocities."

State and war department officials rejected the idea of retaliation against Japanese war prisoners held by American forces on the grounds that it would be inhuman and beneath the dignity of (Continued on Page Nine)

MINE PARLEY STILL ON SNAG

President Or WLB May Be Forced To Intervene By End Of Week

NEW YORK, April 22—Wage negotiations between the United Mine Workers union and the northern and southern bituminous coal mine operators remained deadlocked today.

With only eight days left before expiration of the temporary agreement under which the mines are operating, it was believed that either President Roosevelt or the War Labor Board will be forced to intervene in the negotiations before the end of the week.

"No progress," was reported following a six hour conference yesterday between the northern operators, headed by Charles O'Neill and the union representatives, led by John L. Lewis. Dr. John R. Steelman, director of the U. S. conciliation service, also attended the long conference.

The conferences were to be resumed this morning but it was admitted the conferees are as far apart as ever on the basic union demand for a substantial increase in pay. The operators contend an increase in pay would be a violation of President Roosevelt's hold-the-line anti-inflation order while the union is convinced a pay raise can be given the miners without changing the basic daily rates.

Anxious Moments Of Tokyo Raiders Told In Diary Of Aviator

(Editor's note: The bombing raid on Tokyo had anxious moments for the American flyers who participated. A tense story of that harrowing day was written in a diary by Maj. William M. Bower, of Cleveland, O., pilot of the last bomber in the historic formation to sweep over the Nipponese city on April 18, 1942. Major Bower now is serving in North Africa and permission to publish his diary was given International News Service by his wife, the former Lorraine Annman, of Denver, to whom he was married last August 18 in Walterboro, N. C., following his return from Chungking, China.)

By Major William M. Bower

On the morning of April 18th, general quarters sounded on the carrier at 4 a. m., but everyone of us slept as usual. About an hour later, Major John A. Hilger, of Jamaica Plains, Mass., came in and routed me out with word that we might be on our way before the scheduled time.

Topside we went, and for some reason I was eager to go. One by one, the planes took off safely and finally it was my turn, so up that twisting, dipping deck my bomber, "The Werewolf," scooted. Into the air she went at 9:05, then one circle of the Hornet to check the compass and Tokyo straight ahead.

MISSIMO SAYS MURDERS SHOW JAP CHARACTER

NEW YORK, April 22—Warning of further atrocities such as the execution of some of the American flyers who raided Japan, Mme. Chiang Kai Shek today called for the defeat of the Nipponese "utterly and soon."

In a statement expressing her horror at the execution of the American airmen, Mme. Chiang said that the act "should steel the determination of the United Nations to bring immediately to task the enemy who knows no law but brute force."

"Every day of passive theorizing as to the date in the vague future when Japan will be dealt with seriously and effectively strengthens Japan's stranglehold on the territories and resources which she will pervert to make herself a world Frankenstein," she said.

Terming the act a "flagrant violation of international law," Mme. Chiang said it comes as "no surprise to the Chinese who have witnessed the calculated cruelty perpetrated on them by the enemy especially for the last six years."

NAZIS WARNED OF USE OF GAS

Immediate Retaliation In Kind Promised If Reds Are Attacked

LONDON, April 22—Great Britain, taking cognizance of ominous reports from "several sources" that Germany is preparing to use gas against the Russians, renewed its warning to the Reich today that the Nazis can expect immediate retaliation in kind.

The new warning was issued with dramatic suddenness shortly after midnight from No. 10 Downing street, residence of Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"Reports have been received from several sources that Hitler is making preparations to use poison gas on the Russian front," the statement said.

"Accordingly, His Majesty's government takes early occasion to renew the warning which the prime minister gave last year, namely that the use of poison gas against their Russian allies by the Nazis or their satellites will immediately be followed by the fullest possible use of this process of war on Germany."

GETS DIVORCE TO DO HER BIT IN WAR EFFORT

CHICAGO, April 22—Mrs. Josephine D. Ehrlich, 27, had a divorce from her soldier husband today because "I just wanted to do my part to win the war."

The divorce was granted by Judge Joseph Sabath who was told she was married in 1934 to Arthur F. Ehrlich, now an army private at Fort Lewis, Wash., and was abandoned by him in 1936.

"I didn't want a divorce," Mrs. Ehrlich testified, "but lately Arthur wrote me saying he might be sent overseas any time and would have more peace of mind and be able to fight more efficiently if we were divorced."

U. S. THREATENS USE OF ARMY IN LABOR DISPUTE

Drastic Action Promised Unless U. M. W. Removes Pickets At Newark

BROKEN PLEDGE CITED

Officials Say Workers Must Have Free Access To Celanese Plant

WASHINGTON, April 22—The government today threatened to call in the army unless John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers union removed its picket line from the Newark plant of the Celanese Corporation of America.

Warning the union of army intervention, the War Labor Board said that the picket line is "a flagrant violation of labor's no-strike pledge to the President" and has greatly hampered production of war material.

Employees of the war plant are represented in collective bargaining by the Textile Workers Union, CIO, under a contract which expires next December. The UMW threw its picket line around the plant about a week ago as a move in its jurisdictional dispute with the Textile Workers.

Wayne L. Morse, WLB public member, in identical telegrams to Lewis and three other UMW officials and organizers, said that if the UMW would prevail upon the National Labor Relations Board to grant the union representation rights in the dispute the WLB would immediately recognize them. Morse told Lewis that the board must have his reply "immediately."

"The War Department," Morse said, "informs the National War Labor Board that failure to comply with previous requests of the National War Labor Board for all employees to return to their jobs has resulted in serious interruption to the production of war material not only in the instant plant but in numerous other war plants whose continued production is dependent upon uninterrupted operation of the Newark plant."

"Therefore the WLB by unanimous vote has instructed me to call upon you . . . to disband the picket line."

"Unless the picket line is removed at once so that patriotic American workers may have free and unhampered access to employment at the Celanese plant . . . your government is left with no other course than to provide that necessary protection to the company and the workers."

Japs Plan Murder Of U. S. Airmen

Raiders Coming To Island Will All Be Executed, Tokyo Declares

LONDON, April 22—Japan today threatened that any American airmen who have the misfortune to be forced down during future raids on the Nipponese empire will be executed.

The threat was made in a Tokyo radio broadcast in answer to President Roosevelt's disclosure yesterday that some of the United States flyers who raided Japan last year were put to death.

"Do not forget to make sure that every flyer who comes here has a special pass to hell," said the Tokyo announcer.

"Rest assured it will be strictly a one-way ticket."

Then the announcer added: "You know, if you raid us, we will raid you."

A spokesman for the British foreign office meanwhile expressed the horror and indignation of the British government and all circles in Britain concerning the brutal treatment of Maj. Gen. James H. Doolittle's flyers.

HOUSE MAY VOTE ONCE MORE ON PAY-AS-GO TAX

WASHINGTON, April 22—Despite abandonment of efforts to negotiate a compromise, the house today appeared assured of another vote on pay-as-you-go tax legislation as the ways and means committee prepared to meet tomorrow to report a new Democratic-sponsored bill.

Chairman Doughton (D) N. C., indicated that the new measure would cancel approximately 41 percent of the 1942 tax burden and would offer additional abatement to those taxpayers willing to pay the uncanceled portion of their liabilities at an early date.

The Republicans meantime, gave notice that they would sponsor two substitute proposals, one of them being a still-further modified Ruml plan, and the other embracing a formula which would cancel between 50 and 75 percent of the 1942 tax burden.

With the Democrats holding a 15 to 10 majority, the committee is expected to report the Doughton bill to the house tomorrow or Saturday. House leaders hope to bring the legislation to a vote next week.

FARLEY URGES MORE AIRPLANES FOR MACARTHUR

NEW YORK, April 22—Planes and equipment for General Douglas MacArthur so he may help bring "Japanese brutality to the earliest possible termination," was called for today by James A. Farley, former postmaster general.

Shocked by the Japanese execution of American airmen held as captives of war, Farley said: "The atrocious disregard of the Japanese government of all the rules of war will be severely resented by every American. Every effort of everyone working in the war effort will now be doubled and redoubled."

"We should all devote unlimited power to supply General MacArthur and his associates the necessary planes and equipment to bring this war against Japanese brutality to the earliest possible termination. They can't beat the Japs with a few sticks and stones. There can surely be no one in America today who would hesitate to provide those fighting the Pacific war with all possible required equipment."

Fierce Counter Attacks By Rommel Fail To Shake Allies

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, April 22—The navy announced today that a large force of U. S. bombers had carried out a daylight bombing attack on Nauru island, an important Japanese base in the Gilbert island group, from which the enemy has been constantly threatening American supply lines to the southwest Pacific. All U. S. planes returned safely from the daring raid after shooting down five and possibly seven Japanese Zero planes and inflicting "much damage" on the Jap base, which is 675 miles northeast of Guadalcanal.

By International News Service
Col. Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, who has just returned from a tour of the North African battlefronts, today declared that American casualties there have been "terrific" — many more than the 5,000 that the army has announced.

Waring at a new conference solemnly reported:

"Our people have taken terrific casualties. They have lost a lot of material. They have taken a lot of hard blows. That has got to be expected."

At another point, Waring said that "there are many more casualties" than those announced by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of Allied forces in North Africa. At the same time the Legion leader asserted that there are going to be "lots more" casualties before the Tunisian campaign is over and still many more when "the big battle of Europe" starts.

Hard Work Ahead

Waring stated: "The casualties announced so far cover only the Tunisian campaign. They do not include many more casualties which we have suffered. Rommel (German field marshal) has dug in and before we get Rommel out of Tunisia we are going to have lots more casualties. The American people must realize this. This thing has just started."

Troops of the British Eighth Army are driving axis soldiers from positions along the Enfidaville line in Tunisia at the points of their bayonets, the Algiers radio said today.

The London Evening Standard said meanwhile in an undated dispatch that the Eighth Army had advanced a total of five miles in its drive against the Afrika Korps.

The axis has suffered severe losses in men and tanks in bloody counter-attacks on both the Medjez-El-Bab and Enfidaville fronts which were successfully smashed by allied armies, Gen. Dwight D. (Continued on Page Nine)

HEY, TOKYO! U. S. MAKING 7,000 PLANES IN APRIL

NEW YORK, April 22—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, today predicted that American plane factories will turn out 7,000 planes this month.

Nelson made his disclosure before the American Newspaper Publishers Association convention. "I really think Mr. Hitler miscalculated," Nelson said. "He knew of the great productive genius of America, he knew of our ability to produce things, he knew of our ability to produce weapons of war, but the one thing he didn't count on was the fact that we could do it so quickly, that we could swing into stride as a nation and do a job, whatever that job had to be." Nelson said that if April plane production should fall short of the 7,000 figure, it will be equalled or bettered in May.

Like Routine Flight

It was just like a routine cross-country flight. The boys were jabbering back and forth on the interphone. Then Tech. Sgt. Walsjo J. Bither, of Shreveport, La., broke in with a "land ho!" and sure enough, there it was.

About that time I became a busy boy, trying to harvest the rice crop for the natives. Plenty tough job flying at zero altitude while throttled back to a minimum speed so as to save every drop of gas.

All of a sudden Staff Sgt. Omer A. Duguet, of Warwick, R. I., announced the presence of pursuit planes—but they lost us.

My mouth was getting kind of dry but then, all of a sudden, we spotted a big fire to the south and I steered toward it, believing it to be Tokyo.

No luck, so back to a westerly heading. Sujimama was nowhere to be seen in spite of a cloudless sky. Ahead we sighted more trouble, but kept going, and they, too, missed us.

Spots Air Field

Finally, ahead, I spotted water, but also an airfield literally covered with pursuit planes. Too late to turn and blooie! Over the top we went, figuring this was the end.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, April 22—The navy announced today that a large force of U. S. bombers had carried out a daylight bombing attack on Nauru island, an important Japanese base in the Gilbert island group, from which the enemy has been constantly threatening American supply lines to the southwest Pacific. All U. S. planes returned safely from the daring raid after shooting down five and possibly seven Japanese Zero planes and inflicting "much damage" on the Jap base, which is 675 miles northeast of Guadalcanal.

Col. Roane Waring, national commander of the American Legion, who has just returned from a tour of the North African battlefronts, today declared that American casualties there have been "terrific"—many more than the 5,000 that the army has announced.

Waring at a new conference solemnly reported: "Our people have taken terrific casualties. They have lost a lot of material. They have taken a lot of hard blows. That has got to be expected."

At another point, Waring said that "there are many more casualties" than those announced by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, commander of Allied forces in North Africa. At the same time the Legion leader asserted that there are going to be "lots more" casualties before the Tunisian campaign is over and still many more when "the big battle of Europe" starts.

Hard Work Ahead

Waring stated: "The casualties announced so far cover only the Tunisian campaign. They do not include many more casualties which we have suffered. Rommel (German field marshal) has dug in and before we get Rommel out of Tunisia we are going to have lots more casualties. The American people must realize this. This thing has just started."

Troops of the British Eighth Army are driving axis soldiers from positions along the Enfidaville line in Tunisia at the points of their bayonets, the Algiers radio said today.

The London Evening Standard said meanwhile in an undated dispatch that the Eighth Army had advanced a total of five miles in its drive against the Afrika Korps.

The axis has suffered severe losses in men and tanks in bloody counter-attacks on both the Medjez-El-Bab and Enfidaville fronts which were successfully smashed by allied armies, Gen. Dwight D. (Continued on Page Nine)

HEY, TOKYO! U. S. MAKING 7,000 PLANES IN APRIL

NEW YORK, April 22—Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board, today predicted that American plane factories will turn out 7,000 planes this month.

Nelson made his disclosure before the American Newspaper Publishers Association convention. "I really think Mr. Hitler miscalculated," Nelson said. "He knew of the great productive genius of America, he knew of our ability to produce things, he knew of our ability to produce weapons of war, but the one thing he didn't count on was the fact that we could do it so quickly, that we could swing into stride as a nation and do a job, whatever that job had to be."

Nelson said that if April plane production should fall short of the 7,000 figure, it will be equalled or bettered in May.

LIQUOR BLANKS TO BE ISSUED AT OHIO STORE

All County Residents
Of 21 Or More Eligible
To Register

OPENING DATE MAY 3

Ration Cards Are To Be Issued Following
Application

Any resident of Ohio who has reached his or her twenty-first birthday and who can give positive proof of identity and residence is eligible to obtain a ration card under the new liquor rationing system which will soon go into effect in the state.

Some of the plans for the registration were announced Thursday by Don Fisher, state liquor director.

Circleville state liquor store, East Franklin street, will serve as the center for all rationing activity for Pickaway counties, all persons of the county wishing to buy liquor being required to register there.

Regardless of the number of persons in a family, all over 21 can apply for a rationing card on or after May 3, at which date application blanks are to be made available at liquor stores and agencies throughout the state.

Starting April 26, persons desiring to make purchases before rationing goes into effect must visit the store in his residential zone. In applying for rationing one must also apply to the store in his zone.

After obtaining an application blank at the proper store, one must mail it back to the store and await notice that his ration card is ready for him to obtain. Then the person must prove his identity and address and sign the ration card. This signature must coincide with that on the application as well as on future purchase slips, Director Fisher said.

Aged and infirm people, who have been ordered by their doctors to take doses of liquor daily, but who are unable to go to their respective store for registration, will be taken care of under plans being worked on now.

Meanwhile, plans to take care of transients and soldiers are being formulated and are expected to be announced in a week or ten days, the director asserted.

Financial Questions Head Discussion List At Council Session

Several business matters took council's attention Wednesday evening, financial questions leading the discussion list.

Report of City Auditor Lillian Young that the general fund is $3,015.38 overdrawn and that pay checks for councilmen and some other officials have been delayed prompted by council to ask County Auditor Forrest Short for a $5,000 advance on a tax distribution expected to be made in the next week or 10 days.

Fund balances reported by the city auditor include sewage disposal, $10,185.45; library, $2,967.22; auto street repair, $7,627.79; gasoline tax, $5,042.58; hospital, $871.37, and Civilian Defense, $726.10, making a total in all funds of $25,305.14.

Ordinance Referred

Ordinance to pay Miller Fissell, former traffic officer, $300 for use of his motorcycle and other police equipment for 1940, 1941 and 1942 was read for the second time and was referred to the city solicitor. Question of legality of payment without a contract having previously been approved has arisen, the solicitor to meet with state examiners to determine whether payment will be permitted.

Appropriation ordinance was revised in order to pay Mrs. Elizabeth Lumpe $17.50 due her for services from April 1 to April 15, and to pay Wesley Nibert, janitor, $22.50 also due him as part of an increase from March 15 to May 1.

Rule Revised

Another hospital regulation was revised when council approved, after an appeal by Solicitor Adkins, a measure to pay nurses who do not live in Circleville but who are forced to obtain living quarters in Circleville not more than $15 a month in addition to their regular pay. Adkins told council that living quarters at the hospital are full now and that at least one member of the staff will be forced to live in the city rather than at the hospital.

A resolution authorizing the service director to contract with township trustees to construct a storm sewer in the extreme southeast part of Circleville in order to drain land now covered with water part of the time. Under the contract the township would pay two-fifths and the city three-fifths of the estimated cost of approximately $1,100. Several residents in the First Avenue district report their house basements filled with water much of the time.

Pay boosts of five cents an hour for employees of the city service department were approved under suspension of rules.

COUNTY LEADS IN SURVEY ON RIDE SHARING

Pickaway county today stood well ahead of most other counties in organization of the "Share-the-Ride" program. Ohio State Council of Defense is sending orders to all defense units to start an immediate survey for "Share-the-Ride" purposes.

The local canvass was conducted many weeks ago, long ahead of the state Defense Council's blanket order.

A complete file covering the "Share-the-Ride" program in this district is available in the office of Lawrence J. Johnson, Pickaway county "Share-the-Ride" director.

RULES DECIDED FOR REVOKING GAS RATIONS

OPA Legal Experts Offer Local Board Advice On Procedure

SPEEDING TO BE COSTLY

Second Offenders Likely To Lose Automobile Rights Until Victory

OPA legal experts announced Thursday that as an aid to war price and rationing boards in determining what standards should be used in revoking or suspending the gasoline rations of persons convicted of speeding, the following recommendations are being made to the boards:

1. No board should revoke rations without first giving a speeder a hearing so he can state any valid mitigating circumstances in connection with the offense.
2. In first offenses involving speeds of 36 to 40 miles per hour, a warning letter is recommended.
3. For speeds of 41 to 45, suspensions of all rations for a period of from five to seven days in considered in order.
4. Between 46 and 50, suspensions of all rations for 10 to 15 days are in order.
5. Between 51 and 55, from 15 to 30 days.
6. Between 56 and 60, from 40 to 60 days.
7. In cases where first offenders are convicted of going more than 60 miles per hour, revocations of between 60 days and "until victory" are considered in order.
8. In cases of second offenses involving speeds of over 50 miles an hour, serious consideration should be given to a suspension until victory as well as in cases of third offenders.
9. In all cases, coupons should be detached from the books covering the period of the suspension and voided immediately following the hearing and the clerk of the board should hold the book for the period of the suspension except in unusual cases.

FOOD SHORTAGE? Not Small Farmer's Fault!

CINCINNATUS, 1943 MODEL—Unlike ancient Rome's heroic soldier-farmer, however, this small farm operator helps defeat the enemy by remaining on his land, raising more food than ever.

By ALLAN J. FUNCH
Central Press Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Uncle Sam this summer will harvest a dividend undreamed of in his more peaceful and opulent days preceding Pearl Harbor.

Then, when the farm question revolved around the well-being of the small farmer who altogether too often was unable to make ends meet, the Federal Security administration was set up to provide him with ready cash at a small interest rate.

Today, when the farm question revolves around the well-being of all of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews and the amount of crops the farmer can produce over and above last year's harvest, the half million recipients of FSA loans have pledged themselves to produce more and more and MORE!

These pledges have been made voluntarily. No quotas have been set for these "small farmers," whose lands run up to 40 and 60 acres.

J. H. Wood, regional FSA director of the Maine-through-Maryland district, admitted that even to him the response of the small farmer to 1943 food production problems was a "revelation."

To Beat '42 Output

"These farmers, who contributed a lion's share of the record 1942 food production increases, tell us that they will do it again this year—only in much greater volume," Wood declared. "And I would say these folks, by their own fine performance, are qualified as experts."

"The small farmers are determined to give their country plenty of food for our national needs and all the soldiers we can send overseas—and enough more to feed all freed peoples."

"These farmers do not share the production pessimism of profiteers, defeatists and pressure groups!"

In making a survey of crop possibilities for 1943, the FSA sent letters to 22,000 individual farmers to file ceiling prices of their complete menus not later than May 1. The prices asked by the OPA are for all foods and drinks sold between April 4 and 10.

confidence in their own abilities and other factors upon which production depends," Wood continued.

"I was pleasantly surprised by their expressions of gratitude to their government for the help given them. And I believe that anyone in government service would feel humble after reading these letters from people who do so much and ask so little."

FSA farmers throughout the nation last year, although comprising only 7.6 per cent of all farmers, increased their milk production by 1,419,000,000 pounds—36 per cent of the total increase for the country. They contributed great increases in other war-needed foods as well.

But in this critical year of 1943, the small farmers are still determined to increase production. These are a few of the figures available for the northeastern district alone and represent anticipated percentages over 1941 production:

Milk, up 36.8 per cent.
Eggs, up 108.6 per cent.
Poultry, up 66.7 per cent.
Beef, up 67.7 per cent.
Pork, up 104 per cent.
And believe your Uncle Sam, if these percentages are actually attained it will mean something very great indeed to the United States, the United Nations and the men in the armed services everywhere.

Capacity Production

"Larger operators have been producing to capacity for some time. Their principal problem seems to be to hold their own,"

Wood pointed out.

And the small farmer apparently is not particularly worried about manpower.

"The letters indicate that labor is the least of the small farmer's worries," according to the regional director.

"The small farmer's family is usually large and very helpful in his operations. That is the main reason why he has been able to expand; and that is the reason why he can expand a good deal more right now."

"The small farmer needs machinery, but, according to the consensus of opinion expressed in this file, he will share it with his neighbors. In this way they can get full use of equipment."

The zeal with which the small operators have gone into "war production" is graphically shown in a chart prepared by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The Chart

	FSA	All
Commodity Borrowers		Farmers
Milk	20	3
Beef	38	11
Peanuts	88	70
Pork	36	13
Eggs	31	15
Soybeans	106	98
Chickens	36	14
Dry beans	34	6
Sugar beets	24	16

Naturally, these small farmers who borrowed from FSA in the long, lean years are now repaying the government.

"On Dec. 1, 1942, repayments on our rehabilitation loans were 92 per cent of maturities, plus 5 per cent interest, plus millions of dollars in advance repayments," Wood said.

"This is proving to be a rare opportunity for our family-size farmers to get out of the red, serve their government and lay aside something for post-war security."

FOOD SHORTAGE? Not Small Farmer's Fault!

CINCINNATUS, 1943 MODEL—Unlike ancient Rome's heroic soldier-farmer, however, this small farm operator helps defeat the enemy by remaining on his land, raising more food than ever.

By ALLAN J. FUNCH
Central Press Correspondent
PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — Uncle Sam this summer will harvest a dividend undreamed of in his more peaceful and opulent days preceding Pearl Harbor.

Then, when the farm question revolved around the well-being of the small farmer who altogether too often was unable to make ends meet, the Federal Security administration was set up to provide him with ready cash at a small interest rate.

Today, when the farm question revolves around the well-being of all of Uncle Sam's nieces and nephews and the amount of crops the farmer can produce over and above last year's harvest, the half million recipients of FSA loans have pledged themselves to produce more and more and MORE!

These pledges have been made voluntarily. No quotas have been set for these "small farmers," whose lands run up to 40 and 60 acres.

J. H. Wood, regional FSA director of the Maine-through-Maryland district, admitted that even to him the response of the small farmer to 1943 food production problems was a "revelation."

To Beat '42 Output
"These farmers, who contributed a lion's share of the record 1942 food production increases, tell us that they will do it again this year—only in much greater volume," Wood declared. "And I would say these folks, by their own fine performance, are qualified as experts."

"The small farmers are determined to give their country plenty of food for our national needs and all the soldiers we can send overseas—and enough more to feed all freed peoples."

"These farmers do not share the production pessimism of profiteers, defeatists and pressure groups!"

In making a survey of crop possibilities for 1943, the FSA sent letters to 22,000 individual farmers to file ceiling prices of their complete menus not later than May 1. The prices asked by the OPA are for all foods and drinks sold between April 4 and 10.

Confidence
"These folks had complete confidence in their own abilities and other factors upon which production depends," Wood continued. "I was pleasantly surprised by their expressions of gratitude to their government for the help given them. And I believe that anyone in government service would feel humble after reading these letters from people who do so much and ask so little."

FSA farmers throughout the nation last year, although comprising only 7.6 per cent of all farmers, increased their milk production by 1,419,000,000 pounds—36 per cent of the total increase for the country. They contributed great increases in other war-needed foods as well.

But in this critical year of 1943, the small farmers are still determined to increase production. These are a few of the figures available for the northeastern district alone and represent anticipated percentages over 1941 production:

Milk, up 36.8 per cent.
Eggs, up 108.6 per cent.
Poultry, up 66.7 per cent.
Beef, up 67.7 per cent.
Pork, up 104 per cent.

Capacity Production
"Larger operators have been producing to capacity for some time. Their principal problem seems to be to hold their own,"

to file ceiling prices of their complete menus not later than May 1. The prices asked by the OPA are for all foods and drinks sold between April 4 and 10.

SOY BEANS AND PORK LEAD IN WAR PRODUCTS

Region Plays Important Role In Meeting Fighters' Needs

CEREAL NEEDS LISTED

Large Purchases Made By Federal Agency For Lend Lease Distribution

Soy beans and pork products led the contribution made by the farmers and food processors of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin to the over-seas food requirements of the United Nations during March, according to a report made by D. E. Smith, assistant regional administrator of the Food Distribution Administration.

Large purchases made by the federal agency for lend-lease needs in the five-state region included: soy beans, 54,560,000 pounds; pork meat products, 56,565,269 pounds; lamb and mutton, 3,154,303 pounds; lard, 17,298,234 pounds; dried skim milk, 7,599,945 pounds; American cheese, 6,480,350 pounds; dried eggs, 4,362,045 pounds; equivalent to 13,086,000 dozen shell eggs.

Lesser purchases were condensed milk, 113,300 cases; miscellaneous meats (including sausage), 659,926 pounds; vegetable oil, 1 million pounds; soy bean oil, 600,000 pounds; edible tallow, 185,500 pounds; oleo oil, 40,000 hundred pound bags; army biscuits, 65,625 pounds; lemon juice, 18,000 cases; carotene, 1,899,924 grams.

Grain and cereal product acquisitions included: wheat flour, 3,048,000 pounds; corn meal, 3,700,000 pounds; edible corn starch, 6,279,644 pounds; corn gluten feed, 60,000 pounds; barley cereal, 3,660,000 pounds; farina, 1 million pounds; glucose, 77,200 pounds and corn grits (distiller's dried), 1,800 tons.

Non-food items included: feed and vegetable seeds, 10,040 pounds; laundry soap, 4,900,000 pounds; laundry starch, 35,840 pounds; Bentonite, 2,000 pounds.

Purchases of beef in the five-state region amounted to only 290,773 pounds, and no purchases of butter were made in the five states during March. The list of purchases indicates that March requirements of pork products were 21 percent over February, dried skim milk up 43 percent, and other leading foods excepting soy products are below February purchases.

DENTIST ADMITS CHILDREN TURN TABLE OF FEAR

CHICAGO, April 22 — It has been known from time immemorial that youngsters have been afraid of dentists, but it came out today, probably for the first time, that the dentists are even more scared of the kids.

Dr. Walter McBride, professor of pedodontia (children's dentistry) at the University of Detroit, confessed to the fears of his profession in an address before the Chicago Dental Society.

"Children are a sort of hoodoo to the dental profession," he said. "They're sort of pedodontal gremlins, if you get what I mean. They're hard to manage, difficult to work on—and there's not much money in it."

They're good prospects for future patients when they grow up, though, he admitted.

Grandma Hoskins knows a lot about history—but when we asked her where the first brewer was built in America, she wouldn't take sides.

"You see," says Grandma, "wherever the colonists settled, one of the first things they thought about was food and beer."

In fact, one reason why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock was because the Mayflower was runnin' short of beer. Well, that was a new one on us, but Grandma showed it to us —just as it was written in the Mayflower's log.

And it seems that all through our early American history beer sort of tempered the hardships and helped to make us a tolerant, moderate people.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there's something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

SOY BEANS AND PORK LEAD IN WAR PRODUCTS

Region Plays Important Role In Meeting Fighters' Needs

CEREAL NEEDS LISTED

Large Purchases Made By Federal Agency For Lend Lease Distribution

Soy beans and pork products led the contribution made by the farmers and food processors of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin to the over-seas food requirements of the United Nations during March, according to a report made by D. E. Smith, assistant regional administrator of the Food Distribution Administration.

Large purchases made by the federal agency for lend-lease needs in the five-state region included: soy grits, 54,560,000 pounds; pork meat products, 56,565,259 pounds; lamb and mutton, 3,154,303 pounds; lard, 17,298,234 pounds; dried skim milk, 7,599,945 pounds; American cheese, 6,480,350 pounds; dried eggs, 4,362,045 pounds; equivalent to 13,086,000 dozen shell eggs.

Lesser purchases were condensed milk, 113,500 cases; miscellaneous meats (including sausage), 659,926 pounds; vegetable oil, 1 million pounds; soy bean oil, 600,000 pounds; edible tallow, 185,500 pounds; oleo oil, 40,000 hundred pound bags; army biscuits, 65,625 pounds; lemon juice, 18,000 cases; carotene, 1,899,924 grams.

Grain and cereal product acquisitions included: wheat flour, 3,048,000 pounds; corn meal, 3,700,000 pounds; edible corn starch, 6,276,644 pounds; corn gluten feed, 90,000 pounds; barley cereal, 3,660,000 pounds; farina, 1 million pounds; glucose, 77,200 pounds and corn grits (distiller's dried), 1,800 tons.

Non-food items included: feed and vegetable seeds, 10,040 pounds; laundry soap, 4,900,000 pounds; laundry starch, 35,840 pounds; Bentonite, 2,000 pounds.

Purchases of beef in the five-state region amounted to only 290,773 pounds, and no purchases of butter were made in the five states during March. The list of purchases indicates that March requirements of pork products were 21 percent over February, dried skim milk up 43 percent, and other leading foods excepting soy products are below February purchases.

DENTIST ADMITS CHILDREN TURN TABLE OF FEAR

CHICAGO, April 22 — It has been known from time immemorial that youngsters have been afraid of dentists, but it came out today, probably for the first time, that the dentists are even more scared of the kids.

Dr. Walter McBride, professor of pedodontia (children's dentistry) at the University of Detroit, confessed to the fears of his profession in an address before the Chicago Dental Society.

"Children are a sort of hoodoo to the dental profession," he said. "They're sort of pedodontal gremlins, if you get what I mean. They're hard to manage, difficult to work on—and there's not much money in it."

They're good prospects for future patients when they grow up, though, he admitted.

Grandma Hoskins knows a lot about history—but when we asked her where the first brewery was built in America, she wouldn't take sides.

"You see," says Grandma, "wherever the colonists settled, one of the first things they thought about was food and beer. . . . In fact, one reason why the Pilgrims landed at Plymouth Rock was because the Mayflower was running short of beer."

Well, that was a new one on us, but Grandma showed it to us

it would be too bad, wouldn't it if the war ended before Congress got around to adopting a war tax?

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Finance Committee To Study Proposal Of Mayor Gordon

BLACKBURN MAKES BID

County Health Officer Would Also Provide Service For City

Mayor Ben H. Gordon's program for consolidating offices of service and safety director as an economy and efficiency measure was put into the hands of the city council finance committee Wednesday evening when other questions than the actual consolidation came up.

One of the questions to be considered is the request of Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, that council designate him as city health officer, also. Dr. Blackburn appeared in council and offered his services, subject to approval by the city board of health and the county board of health, which employs him.

Appointment Urged
A letter was read in council from Circleville Child Conservation league, written by Mrs. Harry Heffner, president, urging council to appoint Dr. Blackburn as the health commissioner for Circleville, the League declaring that his record as county health commissioner for the last six years has been outstanding.

Dr. Blackburn informed council that his appointment would not change the status of Mrs. Mae M. Groome, city health nurse, and Mrs. Harriet Wallace, city health board clerk, both of whom would continue in their present duties even if the change were made.

Would Merge Jobs
Under the mayor's plan, Service Director Clarence Helvering would take over the safety director's work also, this added assignment would include supervision of Berger hospital operation, city relief cases, health work and police and fire department supervision. The $900 paid for the combined work of the safety director would be cut somewhat under the tentative agreement worked out between the mayor and his service chief.

However, the appearance of Dr. Blackburn in the picture, and the possibility that the city may obtain a physician for its health officer for the first time in many years have altered the situation sufficiently that more study is believed necessary.
George L. Crites is acting as chairman of the finance committee during illness of Frank A. Lynch. Circleville is at present without a safety director, Ernest W. Weiler having resigned effective April 15.

REV. F. J. HEINE GETS CALL AS ARMY CHAPLAIN

The Rev. F. J. Heine, pastor of Stoutsville Trinity and Tarlton St. Jacob's churches for the last several years, will preach his farewell sermons in the two churches Sunday, May 2.

The pastor, who is widely known in Washington and Salt-creek townships and in the Amanda, Stoutsville and Tarlton communities, has received his commission as a first lieutenant in the chaplain's corps of the U. S. army.

The pastor will report at Boston, Mass., for training immediately after the May 2 sermons. No announcement has been made concerning a successor, another pastor expected to be designated soon.

The Rev. Mr. Heine is married and is the father of three children, Donna, Judy and Charles Edward. The minister is the first serving this district to be taken into the army as a chaplain. The Rev. Kenneth Shook of Carroll, O., an Ashville native, is already in service, however.

Promoter of U. S. Victory Garden Drive Sells Self on Own Idea—So He, Too, Will Have One

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—He is such a good promotion expert, Ernest Moore even sold himself on the idea of a Victory garden.

Campaign manager for the Department of Agriculture, the dapper, mustached Moore has become a practical dirt farmer in his own back yard. His vegetable plot thus may be counted as a national model for the 12 million other city folks urged to grow their own this spring.

A North Carolina farmer's son whose education was devoted to the science of agriculture, Moore in later years has been more of a white-collar operator. His background and training was utilized by the Department of Agriculture to dispense information on a variety of subjects.

This spring, he was borrowed from the Bureau of Plant Industry to concentrate on the Victory garden campaign, one of the key programs to solve the food problem on the home front.

Moore got so interested, he just had to have a garden himself. Raising flowers, particularly azaleas, long had been Moore's hobby, but this year, with war bearing down on the food supply, he decided to be more practical.

An Enthusiast
"I can get my sunshine and outdoor exercise, and, at the same time, provide fresh vegetables for the family," Moore explained enthusiastically. "And, take it from an old farm kid, there's nothing like peas and beans just fresh from the garden."

Although Moore is A-1 in the promotion business, he modestly refuses to take a lion's share of the credit for the amazing boom of the Victory garden campaign.

After all, it is not very hard to convince folk they will need a steady, balanced diet, and the surprise clash in ration points provided a tangible warning. It all adds up to an enlightened self-interest.

So, Moore's chief concern at present is to get the ambitious gardeners off on the right foot. Otherwise, they may spoil their chances at the outset, or once started, bog down during the discouraging period of fighting weeds and bugs. That means a waste of energy and precious garden supplies, a drain on war-time conservation.

Following his own advice, Moore went shopping with a copy of the new Victory garden pamphlet, No. 483, published by the Department of Agriculture. He called at a little country store at Bethesda, Md., near his suburban home.

STUDY IN SOIL—Ernest Moore, in Victory garden, teaches his daughter how to determine when ground is right for spading.

Two open stands were decked in seed packets with brilliant illustrations. Enthusiasm mounts as the back yard farmer visualizes rows of crisp green leaves and tempting multi-colored vegetables. But Moore, unlike many amateurs, full well realizes that there is plenty of good honest labor between the seed and the dinner table.

And Collards, Too
According to specifications, Moore selected the suggested varieties of beans, tomatoes, greens, cabbage, onions and radishes.

"They are not on the list, but I'm going to have collards," Moore volunteered enthusiastically. "We used to have them when I was a boy on our North Carolina farm, and here's my chance to get some more."

After the shopping expedition, Moore rushed home to continue preliminary work on his standard 30 by 50-foot plot at the side of his grass-carpeted lawn.

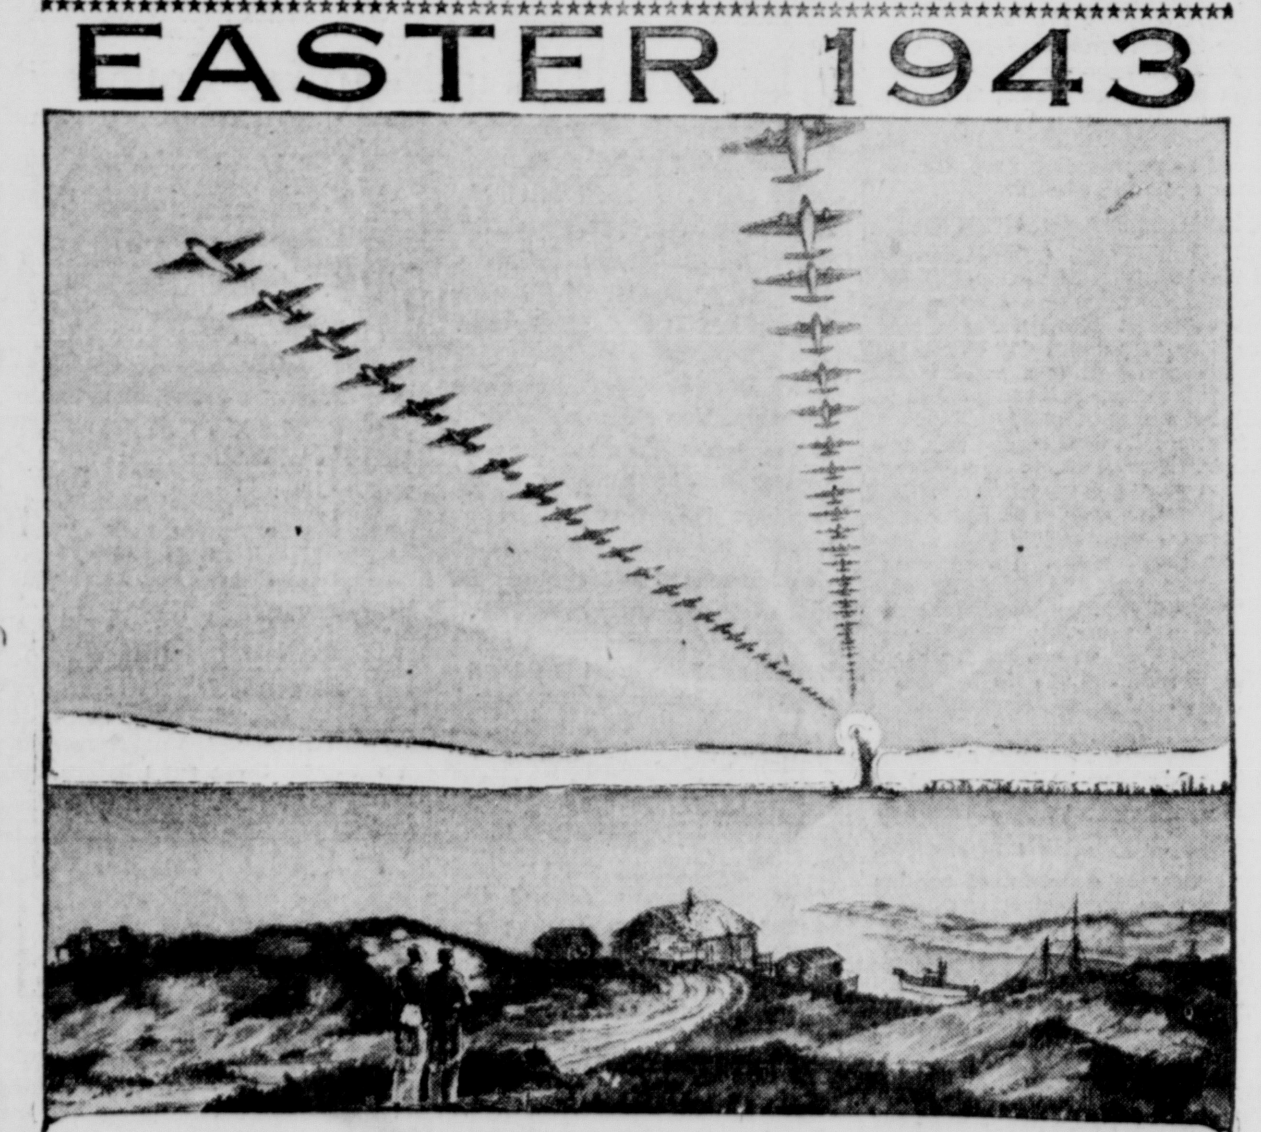

"This land hasn't been cultivated for 30 years," Moore explained, forking out tangled strands of roots. As soon as the ground is thoroughly broken and cleared, Moore will add lime and Victory garden fertilizer.

CANNERS REPORT DECIDED JUMP IN LOCAL ACREAGE

Cannery operators serving Pickaway county informed the AAA Wednesday that acreages contracted for canning crops this Spring have taken a decided jump in the last week. From all indications sufficient supplies of peas and sweet corn will be available to keep the factories operating through their planned seasons.

Last week the AAA reported that figures taken from its Farm Plan survey which covered nearly 85 percent of all farms in the county showed that pea and sweet corn acreages might be too low to keep canning factories busy. However, canning plants have put on strenuous campaigns since the Farm Plans were checked to increase acreage, and their efforts have been successful.
Wilbur Brinker of the AAA office said that pea acreage contracted for canning now stands at 1,290, a big jump over the 770 reported on the Farm Plans. The sweet corn acreage increase is not so large though, the newest figure being 2,943 acres compared with 2,894 acres announced last week on the Farm Plan.

Brinker said that some sweet corn acreage can still be handled by some of the canning plants. Any farmer interested in boosting his allotted acreage is asked to contact the AAA office.
Four canneries will be operating in this area this year, Winorr,

Esmeralda, Crites and St. Mary's, the latter at Mount Sterling. Canal Winchester plant will likely handle some acreage from northeastern Pickaway county.

County Health Officer Would Also Provide Service For City

Mayor Ben H. Gordon's program for consolidating offices of service and safety director as an economy and efficiency measure was put into the hands of the city council finance committee Wednesday evening when other questions than the actual consolidation came up.

One of the questions to be considered is the request of Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, that council designate him as city health officer, also. Dr. Blackburn appeared in council and offered his services, subject to approval by the city board of health and the county board of health, which employs him.

Appointment Urged

A letter was read in council from Circleville Child Conservation league, written by Mrs. Harry Heffner, president, urging council to appoint Dr. Blackburn as the health commissioner for Circleville, the League declaring that his record as county health commissioner for the last six years has been outstanding.

Dr. Blackburn informed council that his appointment would not change the status of Mrs. Mae M. Groome, city health nurse, and Mrs. Harriet Wallace, city health board clerk, both of whom would continue in their present duties even if the change were made.

Would Merge Jobs

Under the mayor's plan, Service Director Clarence Helvering would take over the safety director's work also, this added assignment would include supervision of Berger hospital operation, city relief cases, health work and police and fire department supervision. The $900 paid for the combined work of the safety director would be cut somewhat under the tentative agreement worked out between the mayor and his service chief.

However, the appearance of Dr. Blackburn in the picture, and the possibility that the city may obtain a physician for its health officer for the first time in many years have altered the situation sufficiently that more study is believed necessary. George L. Crites is acting as chairman of the finance committee during illness of Frank A. Lynch. Circleville is at present without a safety director, Ernest W. Wellmer having resigned effective April 15.

REV. F. J. HEINE GETS CALL AS ARMY CHAPLAIN

The Rev. F. J. Heine, pastor of Stoutsville Trinity and Tarlton St. Jacob's churches for the last several years, will preach his farewell sermons in the two churches Sunday, May 2.

The pastor, who is widely known in Washington and Salt-creek townships and in the Amanda, Stoutsville and Tarlton communities, has received his commission as a first lieutenant in the chaplain's corps of the U. S. army.

The pastor will report at Boston, Mass., for training immediately after the May 2 sermons.

No announcement has been made concerning a successor, another pastor expected to be designated soon.

The Rev. Mr. Heine is married and is the father of three children, Donna, Judy and Charles Edward. The minister is the first serving this district to be taken into the army as a chaplain. The Rev. Kenneth Shook of Carroll, O., an Ashville native, is already in service, however.

Promoter of U. S. Victory Garden Drive Sells Self on Own Idea—So He, Too, Will Have One

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—He is such a good promotion expert, Ernest Moore even sold himself on the idea of a Victory garden.

Campaign manager for the Department of Agriculture, the dapper, mustached Moore has become a practical dirt farmer in his own back yard. His vegetable plot thus may be counted as a national model for the 12 million other city folks urged to grow their own this spring.

A North Carolina farmer's son whose education was devoted to the science of agriculture, Moore in later years has been more of a white-collar operator. His background and training was utilized by the Department of Agriculture to dispense information on a variety of subjects.

This spring, he was borrowed from the Bureau of Plant Industry to concentrate on the Victory garden campaign, one of the key programs to solve the food problem on the home front.

Moore got so interested, he just had to have a garden himself. Raising flowers, particularly azaleas, long had been Moore's hobby, but this year, with war bearing down on the food supply, he decided to be more practical.

An Enthusiast

"I can get my sunshine and outdoor exercise, and, at the same time, provide fresh vegetables for the family," Moore explained enthusiastically. "And, take it from an old farm kid, there's nothing like peas and beans just fresh from the garden."

Although Moore is A-1 in the promotion business, he modestly refuses to take a lion's share of the credit for the amazing boom of the Victory garden campaign.

After all, it is not very hard to convince folk they will need a steady, balanced diet, and the surprise clash in ration points provided a tangible warning. It all adds up to an enlightened self-interest.

So, Moore's chief concern at present is to get the ambitious gardeners off on the right foot. Otherwise, they may spoil their chances at the outset, or once started, bog down during the discouraging period of fighting weeds and bugs. That means a waste of energy and precious garden supplies, a drain on war-time conservation.

Following his own advice, Moore went shopping with a copy of the new Victory garden pamphlet, No. 483, published by the Department of Agriculture. He called at a little country store at Bethesda, Md., near his suburban home.

Two open stands were decked in seed packets with brilliant illustrations. Enthusiasm mounts as the back yard farmer visualizes rows of crisp green leaves and tempting multi-colored vegetables. But Moore, unlike many amateurs, full well realizes that there is plenty of good honest labor between the seed and the dinner table.

And Collards, Too

According to specifications, Moore selected the suggested varieties of beans, tomatoes, greens, cabbage, onions and radishes.

"They are not on the list, but I'm going to have collards," Moore volunteered enthusiastically. "We used to have them when I was a boy on our North Carolina farm, and here's my chance to get some more."

After the shopping expedition, Moore rushed home to continue preliminary work on his standard 30 by 50-foot plot at the side of his grass-carpeted lawn.

"This land hasn't been cultivated for 30 years," Moore explained, forking out tangled strands of roots. As soon as the ground is thoroughly broken and cleared, Moore will add lime and Victory garden fertilizer.

CANNERS REPORT DECIDED JUMP IN LOCAL ACREAGE

Cannery operators serving Pick-away county informed the AAA Wednesday that acreages contracted for canning crops this Spring have taken a decided jump in the last week. From all indications sufficient supplies of peas and sweet corn will be available to keep the factories operating through their planned seasons. Last week the AAA reported that figures taken from its Farm Plan survey which covered nearly 85 percent of all farms in the county showed that pea and sweet corn acreages might be too low to keep canning factories busy. However, canning plants have put on strenuous campaigns since the Farm Plans were checked to increase acreage, and their efforts have been successful. Wilbur Brinker of the AAA office said that pea acreage contracted for canning now stands at 1,290, a big jump over the 770 reported on the Farm Plans. The sweet corn acreage increase is not so large though, the newest figure being 2,943 acres compared with 2,894 acres announced last week on the Farm Plan. Brinker said that some sweet corn acreage can still be handled by some of the canning plants. Any farmer interested in boosting his allotted acreage is asked to contact the AAA office. Four canneries will be operating in this area this year, Winorr,

Esmeralda, Crites and St. Mary's, the latter at Mount Sterling. Canal Winchester plant will likely handle some acreage from northeastern Pickaway county.

PACIFIC FOOHOLDS

IN the course of this war, Americans are naturally developing a new interest in the western Pacific. A global war demands footholds in many out-of-the-way places. Both British and Japs have been ahead of us in this game. The British for a couple of centuries have been shrewdly taking over "what they thought they might require." The Japanese, starting rather late, have engaged in similar enterprise, and now have stepping stones all through the Pacific that serve them well in the present war. Meanwhile we Americans have been developing our home land and priding ourselves on our "splendid isolation."

Uncle Sam now has to depend unduly on the British for bases. For example, Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands, where we have been doing so much fighting, is owned by the British. Their protective fringe for Australia and New Zealand serves a good purpose. But at the end of this war, the United States might do well to buy a few strategic islands from John Bull. Farther north we shall probably take "what we require" from the Japs, as partial payment for their devilry and a screen against them for the future.

NEW DISHES TO EAT

FOOD high or points low? Then it may pay to explore the possibilities of the back yard or the vacant lot, or woods in the country. Todd Parrish, a Northern Ohio vegetarian, recommends springtime cattail roots when roasted, or the boiled roots of arrowweed. Milkweed sprouts, if picked when only a few inches high, taste like asparagus, according to Mr. Parrish. The spring sprouts of brake ferns are another delicacy beginning to appear in Boston and New York stores specializing in food novelties.

Then there are always mushrooms, of which some 200 varieties are harmless and only three dangerous. When the gatherer has learned to recognize the three he can enjoy others freely.

Not everyone may agree with Mr. Parrish's tastes. But dandelion greens have come straight from the back yard to the table. There is no reason why they should be the only field product to get promoted.

INDUSTRIAL UNIFORMS

WHAT has happened to the suggestion that men and women engaged in war industries should wear uniforms indicating their status? Such distinction would probably be appreciated by workers in general. It should give them a pleasant patriotic "kick" and at the same time indicate silently to everybody else that they were engaged in service to their country. An arm-band would do this.

Industrial service is as important as military service, although less dangerous, and might well be recognized accordingly. It would put all war workers on an equal patriotic basis. Workers making particularly good production records should get

U-BOATS BLAST LETTERS

WASHINGTON—Many an American mother is hearing from her boy, "Why don't you write? I haven't had a letter from home for ages." And she knows she has written faithfully every day.

The explanation is the U-boat, which the War Department regrets to say caused the loss of "several million pieces of mail" during the first three weeks of March alone.

But still the mother wonders why some of her daily letters don't get through. Even if a third of them were sunk her boy should have received 20 letters in the month.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way. If she writes 30 letters a month all those letters may have accumulated in the Port of New York or some other port waiting for a convoy outward bound. Convoys cannot leave every day or two. So all 30 letters might go into one ship and if that ship is sunk her son will have no mail for a month.

There is no solution to this problem except to keep on writing.

CLARE LUCE AND HENRY WALLACE

Vice President Wallace doesn't know it but his vigorous critics, Congresswoman Clare Luce, and her husband now have their personal attorney stationed on Wallace's BEW staff.

He is Alexander Hehmer, who has handled the legal work for Mr. and Mrs. Luce for some time and who now sits in on the BEW post-war planning committee for air routes. This is the same problem over which the Vice-President and the beautiful Congresswoman from Connecticut tangled.

Behind all this is interesting background. Several months ago Time Magazine, of which Henry Luce is publisher, printed a line-up of future presidential timber listing among others Vice-President Wallace. The accompanying writeup gave him almost every conceivable bad break, with the good break going to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

And the photo of Wallace featured by Time was one of those nightmarish effects caught by the camera in an off moment. No photographic "morgue" could have turned up worse.

Stung, Wallace called in the Washington representative of Time, Life and Fortune, told him that as far as the Vice-Presidential office was concerned, future news pipelines were closed.

Shortly thereafter Congresswoman Luce took the floor to denounce Wallace's pet ideas on World Peace Planning as "globaloney."

That is why everyone is mystified over the fact that the Luce personal attorney has now suddenly turned up in Wallace's Bureau of Economic Warfare and is sitting in on the post-war air planning committee. The mystery may not be cleared up until Wallace returns from Latin America.

Fewer Meals at Home Bring Eating Problems in Wartime

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ALL OF our daily habits are being disrupted by the war and there is no prospect that the situation is going to improve. Even if peace were declared tomorrow,

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

troops would still have to be sent abroad in order to replace those who have taken their turn at service. In medical schools we believe that practically all doctors being graduated from medical schools will be inducted into service up to at least 1950.

I sit in on the discussions of the house committee of a small hospital and it is astonishing how many problems come up which apparently can't be anticipated, and there is no good reason to believe that the situation will be bettered within the next two or three years.

Our eating habits have been completely changed and will remain so for some time.

Change in Eating Habits

One feature in the change in eating habits is the amount of eating that is done outside the home. In 1929 there was an average of $175,000,000 a month spent on sales in restaurants and eating and drinking places. In October, 1942, there was $592,000,000 spent. These changes are due to the population groups which have moved into war industry centers and have not found proper facilities for living quarters, parents working away from home, increased employment in large cities and towns.

Not only this, but the amount of food which is being served in these places is increasing. In 1929 dollar sales in eating and drinking places were less than 20 per cent of the total retail sales of food stores. Now they are running around 36 per cent.

Problems in Restaurants

All of these things bring problems. Restaurant help is at a premium and often it is difficult to enforce the sanitary regulations which should be imposed upon all food workers. Sanitary officials now have to visit restaurants at night.

An extremely important sanitary precaution which could be instituted is the use of paper cups, paper plates and utensils as much as possible. With the breakdown in the inspection of restaurant workers, the washing of plates, cups, saucers, is often done carelessly, and cross infection is very likely to spread. Even in the best restaurants and eating places patrons should feel that their interests are being served by the use of such paper utensils.

Dish Washing

The technique required by the Bureau of Standards of most health departments for the washing of dishes in a restaurant is quite strict. It cannot be left to a sloppy worker for the reason that cross contaminations of infections from the lungs or digestive tract are very likely to occur unless the temperature of the water and other factors are carefully observed. Already we have reports from some cities that such infections have occurred from neglect of these methods. A great deal of it can be prevented by the use of paper cups and utensils.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. M.:—Could a temperature of 99° in a girl of nine years be caused by a nervous condition, or does there have to be a physical condition to account for it? Is it dangerous to allow a child running this temperature to go ahead with normal activities?

Answer: I would regard this as sufficiently serious to require a careful physical examination. It should not be explained away by the comforting thought that it is due to nervousness. I believe a tuberculin test and an x-ray of the chest should be done in order to eliminate tuberculosis positively. I certainly do not believe the child should indulge in normal activities.

The BLIND MAN'S SECRET

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

AGATHA WAS relieved when the interview in President Hill's office ended. She didn't like the blind boy's refusal to explain further about the old radio tube. Was it because he suspected her?

As she and Clemantine returned toward the rooming house across the street, from which six hours earlier they had been kidnapped, she wondered, too, what Professor Halder had told Bertie Blossom. It seemed unlikely he would have told her he already was married—but it was a danger.

She wanted to think, to study what she should do next to protect herself and Clemantine. She was glad that Beiser, the reporter, had notified the police of their safe return, that news photographers in the last 15 minutes in Dr. Hill's office had shot their full supply of flash bulbs at them, and now it seemed likely that for a time at least she would have peace—except for the tumult in her mind.

Clemantine wanted to be forgotten, too. "We ought to be able to sneak in without attracting more attention," she said. "Most of the girls will be in class at this hour."

But they reckoned without the fat girl. By remarkable coincidence she was coming out the door of her room as they climbed the stairs. Clemantine whispered an aside, "Can you beat it? She's always around when you don't want her!"

"My gracious!" gurgled the fat girl. "You two look like you're all done in. You must have had an awful time."

"It wasn't pleasant," Clemantine told her brusquely. "And now we're like a little sleep, if you don't mind."

"Oh, I'll be quiet as a mouse," Her eyes were round. "Tell me, did you get a look at your kidnappers? What did they look like?"

"One of them had horns," said Clemantine. She brushed past in the narrow hall at the top of the stairs and ushered Agatha into the bedroom. The door clicked behind them.

Agatha sat down on the bed. Her knees were weak.

"That girl," declared Clemantine, "is impossible!"

Agatha wasn't thinking about the inquisitive girl. She was thinking about Willard, the blind boy, who had such marvelous powers of perception that he knew the color of a person's eyes even though he never had seen a color in his life.

"I wonder," she thought out loud, "how Willard could say that radio tube we gave to President Hill was an important clue? He couldn't have seen it. He didn't even examine it with his hands."

"Of course he examined it," Clemantine told her as she surveyed her disheveled hair in the mirror. "Good heavens! What a state to be in for photographs!"

"How could he have examined it?"

"Well, he brought it to us. He left it here, didn't he?"

Agatha started. "Eh? Oh, yes. I'd forgotten. Of course." (She'd have to watch her memory!) "Still—I don't like it, child. I'm afraid."

"Afraid of what? We're rid of it now."

"I don't think we should have left it with Dr. Hill. If it's not the letter they want, we should have destroyed it."

Clemantine threw her a surprised stare. "Destroy a clue?"

Agatha tried to draw the tired lines of her face up into a smile. "Does sound silly, doesn't it?" (She'd better stop talking before she said something more she shouldn't!)

Clemantine opened the closet door. She seemed to freeze as its disarray confronted her. Then she turned swiftly and surveyed the room. "Things aren't where we left them! That yearbook . . . it wasn't on the dresser. I left my white coat over the back of the chair. Now it's on the closet floor. This room has been searched!"

"Of course. By those spies, and probably by the police, too."

"Why by the police?"

"When the kidnapping was reported it probably gave the police a good excuse to come here." Agatha's heart suddenly pounded. She leaped up. The letters in her suitcase! Her letters to Otto, which she had taken from his room.

"Where's my bag?" she demanded.

"Right here. Why so excited?"

Agatha snapped it open. The letters lay there, held by a rubber band as she had left them. She sighed in relief. The spies had searched this room, but not the police. The searcher had been looking for a radio tube—that was all.

Clemantine locked the bedroom door, but observed, "I don't suppose locks do any good against that spy, whoever he is. Professor Halder was murdered behind locked doors."

Agatha sat down on the bed again, shuddering. "Clemantine, don't say such things!"

"Auntie! You're as jumpy as a cat. You need rest. Let me help you off with your coat."

Post - War's Stabilization
Guarantee Tough Problem

Even the Experts Do Not Agree on Stabilization!

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

● HOW TO GUARANTEE stabilization is one of the most difficult problems to be solved, as insurance against a badly gummed-up state of international economics in post-war days.

It is a subject for experts to discuss. Ordinary folk haven't the remotest understanding of it. Well, why don't they get the experts to explain it to them? And that is as mean a puzzle to tackle as the other one. The experts' trouble is that they don't understand it, either. Some of them pretend to, but they disagree among themselves to such an extent that their discussions don't mean anything.

The two outstanding sharks at the argument are Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Lord Keynes, the British treasury's chief counselor. The North and South Poles are no farther apart geographically than that pair are on post-war stabilization. They are polite about it, but that is ALL they are.

At Variance Of course, the ignorant, unscientific theory is that stabilization consists of getting a balance into the keel of a boat or a plane, so that it will float right side up or get back to "stability" after winds and waves have jiggled it.

This stuff, though, is international currency stabilization—keeping two or more countries' respective kinds of different money on a balance, so that one of them won't sky-rocket while the other is slumping. If that happens, it is as if you go into a store to place an order of groceries—and the grocer won't recognize your dough except at a heavy discount and you won't recognize his prices.

Now, basically, countries swap goods with one another. If they are different kinds of stuff—goods that we want and do not have and that they want but do not have—why, it is a simple enough transaction.

The trouble is that such deals are not so straight-away. This is illustrated in our transactions with Latin America.

The Latins have oodles of tropical or semi-tropical raw material that we require and we have industrial goods that they are anxious for.

We generally get along with them pretty well on that basis. Argentina is an exception. That republic really is in competition with us. With the rest of them we are on a swap-even basis. But it is on a conspicuously unharmonious basis that we and the Argentines maintain our mutual relationship. The Argentine will have to get in line ultimately, but it will be reluctant. If it could get away with it, it might be pro-Axis—but for commercial reasons.

Look at them! The Latin Americas can make much more money out of us, and the rest of the world, than otherwise. In the long run Argentina will profit by acquiescing in the inevitable.

It doesn't so much matter as to a little country like the Argentine.

Europe's small nations will be satisfied with what they can get out of the post-war settlement.

The situation for the great powers is not so easily solved. How are monies going to be swapped?

Is it to be done between the United States and Britain alone? Well, then, how are they to be fixed between us and the others? It reaches international proportions. There is where we get to international economies.

PACIFIC FOOTHOLDS

IN the course of this war, Americans are naturally developing a new interest in the western Pacific. A global war demands footholds in many out-of-the-way places. Both British and Japs have been ahead of us in this game. The British for a couple of centuries have been shrewdly taking over "what they thought they might require." The Japanese, starting rather late, have engaged in similar enterprise, and now have stepping stones all through the Pacific that serve them well in the present war. Meanwhile we Americans have been developing our home land and priding ourselves on our "splendid isolation."

Uncle Sam now has to depend unduly on the British for bases. For example, Guadalcanal in the Solomon Islands, where we have been doing so much fighting, is owned by the British. Their protective fringe for Australia and New Zealand serves a good purpose. But at the end of this war, the United States might do well to buy a few strategic islands from John Bull. Farther north we shall probably take "what we require" from the Japs, as partial payment for their devility and a screen against them for the future.

NEW DISHES TO EAT

FOOD high or points low? Then it may pay to explore the possibilities of the back yard or the vacant lot, or woods in the country. Todd Parrish, a Northern Ohio vegetarian, recommends springtime cattail roots when roasted, or the boiled roots of arrowhead. Milkweed sprouts, if picked when only a few inches high, taste like asparagus, according to Mr. Parrish. The spring sprouts of brake ferns are another delicacy beginning to appear in Boston and New York stores specializing in food novelties.

Then there are always mushrooms, of which some 200 varieties are harmless and only three dangerous. When the gatherer has learned to recognize the three he can enjoy others freely.

Not everyone may agree with Mr. Parrish's tastes. But dandelion greens have come straight from the back yard to the table. There is no reason why they should be the only field product to get promoted.

INDUSTRIAL UNIFORMS

WHAT has happened to the suggestion that men and women engaged in war industries should wear uniforms indicating their status? Such distinction would probably be appreciated by workers in general. It should give them a pleasant patriotic "kick" and at the same time indicate silently to everybody else that they were engaged in service to their country. An arm-band would do this.

Industrial service is as important as military service, although less dangerous, and might well be recognized accordingly. It would put all war workers on an equal patriotic basis. Workers making particularly good production records should get

WASHINGTON—Many an American mother is hearing from her boy, "Why don't you write? I haven't had a letter from home for ages." And she knows she has written faithfully every day.

The explanation is the U-boat, which the War Department regrets to say caused the loss of "several million pieces of mail" during the first three weeks of March alone.

But still the mother wonders why some of her daily letters don't get through. Even if a third of them were sunk her boy should have received 20 letters in the month.

Unfortunately, it doesn't work that way. If she writes 30 letters a month all those letters may have accumulated in the Port of New York or some other port waiting for a convoy outward bound. Convoys cannot leave every day or two. So all 30 letters might go into one ship and if that ship is sunk her son will have no mail for a month.

There is no solution to this problem except to keep on writing.

CLARE LUCE AND HENRY WALLACE

Vice President Wallace doesn't know it but his vigorous critics, Congresswoman Clare Luce, and her husband now have their personal attorney stationed on Wallace's BEW staff.

He is Alexander Hehmyer, who has handled the legal work for Mr. and Mrs. Luce for some time and who now sits in on the BEW post-war planning committee for air routes. This is the same problem over which the Vice-President and the beautiful Congresswoman from Connecticut tangled.

Behind all this is interesting background. Several months ago Time Magazine, of which Henry Luce is publisher, printed a line-up of future presidential timber listing among others Vice-President Wallace. The accompanying writeup gave him almost every conceivable bad break, with the good break going to Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

And the photo of Wallace featured by Time was one of those nightmarish effects caught by the camera in an off moment. No photographic "morgue" could have turned up worse.

Stung, Wallace called in the Washington representative of Time, Life and Fortune, told him that as far as the Vice-Presidential office was concerned, future news pipelines were closed.

Shortly thereafter Congresswoman Luce took the floor to denounce Wallace's pet ideas on World Peace Planning as "globaloney."

That is why everyone is mystified over the fact that the Luce personal attorney has now suddenly turned up in Wallace's Bureau of Economic Warfare and is sitting in on the post-war air planning committee. The mystery may not be cleared up until Wallace returns from Latin America.

Fewer Meals at Home Bring Eating Problems in Wartime

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

ALL OF our daily habits are being disrupted by the war and there is no prospect that the situation is going to improve. Even if peace were declared tomorrow,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

troops would still have to be sent abroad in order to replace those who have taken their turn at service. In medical schools we believe that practically all doctors being graduated from medical schools will be inducted into service up to at least 1950.

I sit in on the discussions of the house committee of a small hospital and it is astonishing how many problems come up which apparently can't be anticipated, and there is no good reason to believe that the situation will be bettered within the next two or three years.

Our eating habits have been completely changed and will remain so for some time.

Change in Eating Habits

One feature in the change in eating habits is the amount of eating that is done outside the home. In 1929 there was an average of $175,000,000 a month spent on sales in restaurants and eating and drinking places. In October, 1942, there was $592,000,000 spent. These changes are due to the population groups which have moved into war industry centers and have not found proper facilities for living quarters, parents working away from home, increased employment in large cities and towns.

Not only this, but the amount of food which is being served in these places is increasing. In 1929 dollar sales in eating and drinking places were less than 20 per cent of the total retail sales of food stores. Now they are running around 36 per cent.

Problems in Restaurants

All of these things bring problems. Restaurant help is at a premium and often it is difficult to enforce the sanitary regulations which should be imposed upon all food workers. Sanitary officials now have to visit restaurants at night.

An extremely important sanitary precaution which could be instituted is the use of paper cups, paper plates and utensils as much as possible. With the breakdown in the inspection of restaurant workers, the washing of plates, cups, saucers, is often done carelessly, and cross infection is very likely to spread. Even in the best restaurants and eating places patrons should feel that their interests are being served by the use of such paper utensils.

Dish Washing

The technique required by the Bureau of Standards of most health departments for the washing of dishes in a restaurant is quite strict. It cannot be left to a sloppy worker for the reason that cross contaminations of infections from the lungs or digestive tract are very likely to occur unless the temperature of the water and other factors are carefully observed. Already we have reports from some cities that such infections have occurred from neglect of these methods. A great deal of this can be prevented by the use of paper cups and utensils.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. M.:—Could a temperature of 99° in a girl of nine years be caused by a nervous condition, or does there have to be a physical condition to account for it? Is it dangerous to allow a child running this temperature to go ahead with normal activities?

Answer: I would regard this as sufficiently serious to require a careful physical examination. It should not be explained away by the comforting thought that it is due to nervousness. I believe a tuberculin test and an x-ray of the chest should be done in order to eliminate tuberculosis positively. I certainly do not believe the child should indulge in normal activities.

The BLIND MAN'S SECRET

by RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

AGATHA WAS relieved when the interview in President Hill's office ended. She didn't like the blind boy's refusal to explain further about the old radio tube. Was it because he suspected her?

As she and Clemantine returned toward the rooming house across the street, from which six hours earlier they had been kidnaped, she wondered, too, what Professor Halder had told Belle Blossom. It seemed unlikely he would have told her he was married—but it was a danger.

She wanted to think, to study what she should do next to protect herself and Clemantine. She was glad that Belser, the reporter, had notified the police of their safe return, that news photographers in the last 15 minutes in Dr. Hill's office had shot their full supply of flash bulbs at them, and now it seemed likely that for a time at least she would have peace—except for the tumult in her mind.

Clemantine wanted to be forgotten, too. "We ought to be able to sneak in without attracting more attention," she said. "Most of the girls will be in class at this hour."

But they reckoned without the fat girl. By remarkable coincidence she was coming out the door of her room as they climbed the stairs. Clemantine whispered an aside, "Can you beat it? She's always around when you don't want her!"

"My gracious!" gurgled the fat girl. "You two look like you're all done in. You must have had an awful time."

"It wasn't pleasant," Clemantine told her brusquely. "And now we'd like a little sleep, if you don't mind."

"Oh, I'll be quiet as a mouse." Her eyes were round. "Tell me, did you get a look at your kidnappers? What did they look like?"

"One of them had horns," said Clemantine. She brushed past in the narrow hall at the top of the stairs and ushered Agatha into the bedroom. The door clicked behind them.

Agatha sat down on the bed. Her knees were weak.

"That girl," declared Clemantine, "is impossible!"

Agatha wasn't thinking about the inquisitive girl. She was thinking about Willard, the blind boy, who had such marvelous powers of perception that he knew the color of a person's eyes even though he never had seen a color in his life.

"I wonder," she thought out loud, "how Willard could say that radio tube gave to President Hill was an important clue? He couldn't have seen it. He didn't even examine it with his hands."

"Of course he examined it," Clemantine told her as she surveyed her disheveled hair in the mirror. "Good heavens! What a state to be in for photographs!"

"How could he have examined it?"

"Well, he brought it to us. He left it here, didn't he?"

Agatha startled. "Eh? Oh, yes. I'd forgotten. Of course." (She'd have to watch her memory!) "Still—I don't like it, child. I'm afraid."

"Afraid of what? We're rid of it now."

"I don't think we should have left it with Dr. Hill. If it's not the tube they want, we should have destroyed it."

Clemantine threw her a surprised stare. "Destroy a clue?"

Agatha tried to draw the tired lines of her face up into a smile. "Doesn't sound silly, doesn't it?" (She'd better stop talking before she said something more she shouldn't!)

Clemantine opened the closet door. She seemed to freeze as its disarray confronted her. Then she turned swiftly and surveyed the room. "Things aren't where we left them! That yearbook . . . it wasn't on the dresser. I left my white coat over the back of the chair. Now it's on the closet floor. This room has been searched!"

"Of course. By those spies, and probably by the police, too."

"When the kidnapping was reported it probably gave the police a good excuse to come here." Agatha's heart suddenly pounded. She leaped up. The letters in her suitcase! Her letters to Otto, which she had taken from his room.

"Where's my bag?" she demanded.

"Right here. Why so excited?"

Agatha snapped it open. The letters lay there, held by a rubber band as she had left them. She sighed in relief. The spies had searched this room, but not the police. The searcher had been looking for a radio tube—that was all.

Clemantine locked the bedroom door, but observed, "I don't suppose locks do any good against that spy, whoever he is. Professor Halder was murdered behind locked doors."

Agatha sat down on the bed again, shuddering. "Clemantine, don't say such things!"

"Auntie! You're as jumpy as a cat. You need rest. Let me help you off with your coat."

Agatha sat down on the bed again, shuddering. "Clemantine, don't say such things!"

"Auntie! You're as jumpy as a cat. You need rest. Let me help you off with your coat."

As the fur coat came off, something fluffy and white fell out of one sleeve onto the rug. Agatha remembered it with a start. A piece of absorbent cotton!

Clemantine picked it up and gave the elder woman a hard look. "You must have taken this off the bed in Professor Halder's room! A fine one you are to talk about protecting me from suspicion. Why, if they found this here . . ."

"Of course I am trying to protect you! I—I didn't know you saw me take it. It must have been just a reaction on the spur of the moment. I'm sure I don't know what good it is to me."

"I know! You've always been nuts about chemistry. Grandmother said the whole family almost wished you'd never gone to college, the way you were always fussing around with test tubes and things. Now you've got some idea you can analyze this cotton and find something the police will overlook!"

"You don't understand . . ."

Agatha's eyes suddenly welled full of tears. She tried to hide them with her hands, but not quickly enough. Clemantine dropped beside her in sudden contrition and circled her shoulders with a strong young arm.

"Forgive me! I'm a silly little fool. I didn't mean to hurt you!"

Agatha wiped her eyes with a handkerchief and looked up. "Everything you say about me is true, child. But you . . ." Her voice choked off as she stared into the closet.

Clemantine gasped. "What's the matter?"

"Matter? Nothing." Agatha tried to keep her voice natural. "I—I just happened to think . . . We ought to read what they're saying about us in the papers. I wonder how they learned that Miss Blossom was a spy." She rose and started for the door. "Let's go out and see if there's a paper in the hall."

"There won't be. The paper isn't delivered until late afternoon."

Agatha gave her a meaningful stare and beckoned her. "I think we ought to look, anyway. There still may be a morning paper lying around."

Clemantine seemed to realize there was something unusual afoot. She unlocked the door. Together they stepped outside.

Agatha shut the door quickly behind them. "Clemantine!" she whispered. "There's a microphone hidden in that closet! I saw the wires. Someone's been listening to everything we said!"

Post - War's Stabilization Even the Experts Do Not Guarantee Tough Problem Agree on Stabilization!

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

HOW TO GUARANTEE stabilization is one of the most difficult problems to be solved, as insurance against a badly gummed-up state of international economics in post-war days.

It is a subject for experts to discuss. Ordinary folk haven't the remotest understanding of it. Well, why don't they get the experts to explain it to them? And that is as mean a puzzle to tackle as the other one. The experts' trouble is that they don't understand it, either. Some of them pretend to, but they disagree among themselves to such an extent that their discussions don't mean anything. The two outstanding sharks at the argument are Treasury Secretary Morgenthau and Lord Keynes, the British treasury's chief counselor. The North and South Poles are no farther apart geographically than that pair are on post-war stabilization. They are polite about it, but that is ALL they are.

Of course, the ignorant, unscientific theory is that stabilization consists of getting a balance into the keel of a boat or a plane, so that it will float right side up or get back to "stability" after winds and waves have jiggled it.

This stuff, though, is international currency stabilization—keeping two or more countries' respective kinds of different money on a balance, so that one of them won't sky-rocket while the other is slumping. If that happens, it is as if you go into a store to place an order of groceries—and the grocer won't recognize your dough except at a heavy discount and you won't recognize his prices.

Now, basically, countries swap goods with one another.

If they are different kinds of stuff—goods that we want and do not have and that they want but do not have—why, it is a simple enough transaction.

The trouble is that such deals are not so straight-away. This is illustrated in our transactions with Latin America.

The Latins have oodles of tropical or semi-tropical raw material that we require and we have industrial goods that they are anxious for.

We generally get along with them pretty well on that basis. Argentina is an exception. That republic really is in competition with us. With the rest of them we are on a swap-even basis. But it is on a conspicuously unharmonious basis that we and the Argentines maintain our mutual relationship. The Argentine will have to get in line ultimately, but it will be reluctant. If it could get away with it, it might be pro-Axis—but for commercial reasons.

Look at them! The Latin Americans can make much more money out of us, and the rest of the world, than otherwise. In the long run Argentina will profit by acquiescing in the inevitable.

Proper Planting of Beets in Victory Garden

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Association

BEET SEEDS may be planted outdoors just as soon as it is possible to prepare the soil. Light frosts will not injure either the seeds or young plants.

Beet seeds should be sown thinly since one kernel will send up several sprouts, sometimes as many as six.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, plant beet seeds one inch apart along the row and one inch deep. The distance apart the rows are placed will depend upon the size of the Victory garden and the type of wheel cultivator used, if any other than the good old hoe. The rows may vary from 14 to 24 inches apart.

The thinning of young beet plants should begin early. Do not wait until the plants have become injured by overcrowding. Thin the plants to four inches apart in the row, as illustrated. The thinned out plants can be replanted in some other part of the garden or they can be used as table greens.

If the thinned out plants are transplanted they will mature about 10 days later than the rows from which they were taken.

Successive plantings of beets should be made all summer and any surplus of the early beet plantings can be canned for winter use. Ample amounts of the late varieties of beets should be planted with the intention of storing the harvested roots for winter use.

PITCHERS TOO TOUGH IN FIRST LEAGUE GAMES

Johnny Vander Meer Puts Horse Collars On 1942 Championship Crew

OTHER SHUTOUTS SCORED

Bigtime Hitters Gone From Clubs; Season May Become Hurler's Paradise

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, April 22 — The major leagues of 1943 apparently are to be remembered as a pitcher's paradise. The big hitters are gone from the baseball scene to fight and to help supply a war, and their absence already is noticeable. The question now seems to be whether the modern day fan, schooled on power-housing at bat, will accept a reversion to the old days of tricky hurling, few runs, inside baseball and the static thrill of no explosives.

Opening before disappointingly small crowds in four parks yesterday, the baseball season got away to a start calculated to be something less than a three-alarm wow. The four winning teams all accomplished their victories by shutouts. A two-hitter, two three-hitters and a four-hitter were perpetrated, and that baseball which has caused so many groans turns out to be a worse cantaloupe than the one they used last year.

Through it all, the Cincinnati Reds beat the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 1 to 0, in 11 innings behind Johnny Vander Meer hurling against Mort Cooper. The worst thing about Vander Meer is that he has been reclassified 1-A at a time when he might cash in better than ever before on his left arm. The hitters are scarce.

Pirates, Tribe, Browns Win
Truett (Rip) Sewell, of the Pirates, beat the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 0, in the other National league game and in the American league, the Cleveland Indians downed Detroit, 1 to 0, behind Jim Bagby and Al Hollingsworth, of the St. Louis Browns, blanked out the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 0.

All told, opening day produced only 42 hits among the eight teams that played, or just over five hits per club — and if that's not a dead ball, then bring on your watermelons, bud.

Next to Vander Meer's two-hitter, as a reminder of that time in 1938 when in successive games he hurled no-hit shutouts against the Braves and Dodgers, came the three-hitters by Bagby and Sewell and the four hitter by Hollingsworth—all shutouts.

The less said about attendance the better, except that the actual figures for the four games may as well be reported:

At Cincinnati, 27,709 for the Cards-Red game; at Chicago, 9,044 for the Pirates-Cubs game; at Cleveland, 13,847 for the Tiger-Indians tussle and at St. Louis, 4,421 for the White Sox-Browns engagement, all of which averages up to less than 15,000 a game for the season opens allegedly nobody could do without.

Those clubs were to meet again today along with the Washington Senators at New York, the Boston Red Sox at Philadelphia, the New York Giants at Brooklyn and the Philadelphia Phillies at Boston, the latter four having been postponed yesterday.

Slugging Reduced
What do the results of yesterday presage? Does that lack of hitting mean that the major league batting titles will be won with averages of about .315, and that the home run champions will power the ball to the extent of about 15 circuit blows? It could be. And if that be so, then does it mean that baseball will have to thrive on the week end attendance expected from defense workers? That could be, too.

The games don't draw anyhow in mid-week, except when there is an extra added attraction such as Williams or DiMaggio or some such in town, and they are gone. In any case, the expected baseball boom is slow forming. It may never get here, for it seems that, after all, the game lives on the headlines made by the guys who can clear the fence with their swings.

Either the pitchers are ahead of the hitters in condition, or this is going to be the year of the great renaissance for banjo hitters. And if I sound pessimistic, please forget it. Perhaps by mid-June the parks will be filled to capacity and every ball hit will soar out of the park—but I doubt it.

DAN(DEE) PROSPECT

Ocean Wave Moves Up As Derby Contender

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 22—Ocean Wave, Warren Wright's sterling three-year-old, today was back in favor for the Kentucky Derby with many of the turf fans following his impressive victory in Keeneland's $10,000 added Blue Grass Stakes at Churchill Downs.

The Calumet Farm star finished the mile and an eighth derby tune-up yesterday two and a half lengths ahead of Amber Light and seven and a half lengths ahead of Crest, the third horse.

By the victory, achieved over a slow track, Ocean Wave redeemed himself for the defeats he was handed by Amber Light in the Louisiana Derby and Seven Hearts in the Arkansas Derby.

Seven Hearts, which battled for the lead with Amber Light in the early pace, tired badly in the stretch and wound up last in the field of six. Dove Pie was fourth and Valdina Sol fifth.

Wendell Eads, up on Ocean Wave, lay back while Amber Light and Seven Hearts were racing side by side and did not launch his drive until nearing the stretch. He then swung wide for secure footing and brought the Calumet color bearer right down the middle of the stretch.

By this time Seven Hearts had folded, but Amber Light under Johnny Longden put on a game fight and was not vanquished until near the end of the thrilling finish. Then Amber Light tired and Ocean Wave won going away.

Ocean Wave ran the mile and an eighth in 1:53 4/5 and paid his backers $5.80, $3.20 and $2.20 across the board.

The Warren Wright colt appeared at the peak of condition and was regarded by the experts, off his performance in the Blue Grass, as a real threat to the highly favored Count Fleet, or, as Mrs. John Hertz, in the $75,000 added Kentucky Derby a week from Saturday.

Count Fleet already is at Churchill prepping for the big race, along with a number of other eligibles. W. E. Boeing, the aircraft manufacturer, telegraphed Col. Matt Winn, the head of Churchill Downs, that his two colts, Slide Rule and Twosies, definitely would be shipped to Louisville for the derby.

Keeneland's 10-day meeting at Churchill was ended with yesterday's racing. The track will be idle until Saturday when the regular Churchill Spring meeting opens.

CHICAGO, April 22—Clyde McCullough, regular catcher of the Chicago Cubs who fractured his left leg in the third inning of the opening game with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be lost to the team for five or six weeks, physicians announced today.

"X-ray pictures disclosed an oblique fracture of the left fibula, just above the anklebone, and it probably will be five or six weeks before he can play again," Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs physician, declared.

McCullough was hurt as he stole second base after hitting a single. He made a somersault roll as he slid into the base and apparently caught his spikes, twisting his left leg.

Two other casualties marked the opening game. Eddie Stanky, rookie Cubs' second baseman who twice in his minor league career suffered skull fractures when hit by pitched balls, was struck on the back of the head by one of Rip Sewell's pitches in the first inning and collapsed. He was able to resume playing after first aid.

A few minutes later Huck Geary, rookie Pirate shortstop, crashed into second base in an attempt to break up a double play and twisted his ankle. He was able to resume play after treatment.

PATTY RETURNS TO PEAK FORM WITH 78 SCORE

CHICAGO, April 22—Patty Berg of Minneapolis, national women's golf champion before she turned professional, rejoiced today over shooting a 78 on the Tam O'Shanter course, indicating she had fully recovered from the effects of a Texas automobile accident December 8, 1941.

Miss Berg, who feared the broken knee cap she suffered in the accident might end her golf career, joined with Bill Gordon, home club professional, to win an exhibition match from John Revolta, former national P.G.A. champion, and Mrs. Lillian Krause of Tam O'Shanter.

Miss Berg left for Minneapolis, declaring she expects to compete in the Women's Western Open tournament June 25 at Glen Oak, Chicago.

VANCOUVER, B. C.—A fly, crawling across a mirror in a coffee shop, gave Geoffrey Hotham, 21, science student, his idea for an instrument to be used in the inspection of big guns. He offered his secret to a Canadian firm and later to the U. S. Army Ordnance Corps. Following rejections from both, the idea was accepted by the Division of Optics and Physics of the National Research Council, Ottawa. Hotham then returned to Vancouver to enter the RCAF.

McCullough was hurt as he stole second base after hitting a single. He made a somersault roll as he slid into the base and apparently caught his spikes, twisting his left leg.

Two other casualties marked the opening game. Eddie Stanky, rookie Cubs' second baseman who twice in his minor league career suffered skull fractures when hit by pitched balls, was struck on the back of the head by one of Rip Sewell's pitches in the first inning and collapsed. He was able to resume playing after first aid.

A few minutes later Huck Geary, rookie Pirate shortstop, crashed into second base in an attempt to break up a double play and twisted his ankle. He was able to resume play after treatment.

PITCHERS TOO TOUGH IN FIRST LEAGUE GAMES

Johnny Vander Meer Puts Horse Collars On 1942 Championship Crew

OTHER SHUTOUTS SCORED

Bigtime Hitters Gone From Clubs; Season May Become Hurler's Paradise

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, April 22 — The major leagues of 1943 apparently are to be remembered as a pitcher's paradise. The big hitters are gone from the baseball scene to fight and to help supply a war, and their absence already is noticeable. The question now seems to be whether the modern day fan, schooled on power-housing at bat, will accept a reversion to the old days of tricky hurling, few runs, inside baseball and the static thrill of no explosives.

Opening before disappointingly small crowds in four parks yesterday, the baseball season got away to a start calculated to be something less than a three-alarm wow. The four winning teams all accomplished their victories by shutouts. A two-hitter, two three-hitters and a four-hitter were perpetrated, and that baseball which has caused so many groans turns out to be a worse cantaloupe than the one they used last year.

Through it all, the Cincinnati Reds beat the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, 1 to 0, in 11 innings behind Johnny Vander Meer hurling against Mort Cooper. The worst thing about Vander Meer is that he has been reclassified 1-A at a time when he might cash in better than ever before on his left arm. The hitters are scarce.

Pirates, Tribe, Browns Win
Truett (Rip) Sewell, of the Pirates, beat the Chicago Cubs, 6 to 0 in the other National league game and in the American league, the Cleveland Indians downed Detroit, 1 to 0, behind Jim Bagby and Al Hollingsworth, of the St. Louis Browns, blanked out the Chicago White Sox, 3 to 0.

All told, opening day produced only 42 hits among the eight teams that played, or just over five hits per club — and if that's not a dead ball, then bring on your watermelons, bud.

Next to Vander Meer's two-hitter, as a reminder of that time in 1938 when in successive games he hurled no-hit shutouts against the Braves and Dodgers, came the three-hitters by Bagby and Sewell and the four hitter by Hollingsworth—all shutouts.

The less said about attendance the better, except that the actual figures for the four games may as well be reported:

At Cincinnati, 27,709 for the Cards-Red game; at Chicago, 9,044 for the Pirates-Cubs game; at Cleveland, 13,847 for the Tiger-Indians tussle and at St. Louis, 4,421 for the White Sox-Browns engagement, all of which averages up to less than 15,000 a game for the season opens allegedly nobody could do without.

Those clubs were to meet again today along with the Washington Senators at New York, the Boston Red Sox at Philadelphia, the New York Giants at Brooklyn and the Philadelphia Phillies at Boston, the latter four having been postponed yesterday.

Slugging Reduced

What do the results of yesterday presage? Does that lack of hitting mean that the major league batting titles will be won with averages of about .315, and that the home run champions will power the ball to the extent of about 15 circuit blows? It could be. And if that be so, then does it mean that baseball will have to thrive on the week end attendance expected from defense workers? That could be, too.

The games don't draw anywhere in mid-week, except when there is an extra added attraction such as Williams or DiMaggio or some such in town, and they are gone.

In any case, the expected baseball boom is slow forming. It may never get here, for it seems that, after all, the game lives on the headlines made by the guys who can clear the fence with their swings.

Either the pitchers are ahead of the hitters in condition, or this is going to be the year of the great renaissance for banjo hitters.

And if I sound pessimistic, please forget it. Perhaps by mid-June the parks will be filled to capacity and every ball hit will soar out of the park—but I doubt it.

Ocean Wave Moves Up As Derby Contender

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 22—Ocean Wave, Warren Wright's sterling three-year-old, today was back in favor for the Kentucky Derby with many of the turf fans following his impressive victory in Keeneland's $10,000 added Blue Grass Stakes at Churchill Downs.

The Calumet Farm star finished the mile and an eighth derby tune-up yesterday two and a half lengths ahead of Amber Light and seven and a half lengths ahead of Crest, the third horse.

By the victory, achieved over a slow track, Ocean Wave redeemed himself for the defeats he was handed by Amber Light in the Louisiana Derby and Seven Hearts in the Arkansas Derby.

Seven Hearts, which battled for the lead with Amber Light in the early pace, tired badly in the stretch and wound up last in the field of six. Dove Pie was fourth and Valinda Sol fifth.

Wendell Eads, up on Ocean Wave, lay back while Amber Light and Seven Hearts were racing side by side and did not launch his drive until nearing the stretch. He then swung wide for secure footing and brought the Calumet color bearer right down the middle of the stretch.

By this time Seven Hearts had folded, but Amber Light under Johnny Longden put on a game fight and was not vanquished until near the end of the thrilling finish. Then Amber Light tired and Ocean Wave won going away.

Ocean Wave ran the mile and an eighth in 1:53 4/5 and paid his backers $5.80, $3.20 and $2.20 across the board.

The Warren Wright colt appeared at the peak of condition and was regarded by the experts, off his performance in the Blue Grass, as a real threat to the highly favored Count Fleet, owned by Mrs. John Hertz, in the $75,000 added Kentucky Derby a week from Saturday.

Count Fleet already is at Churchill prepping for the big race, along with a number of other eligibles. W. E. Boeing, the aircraft manufacturer, telegraphed Col. Matt Winn, the head of Churchill Downs, that his two colts, Slide Rule and Twosies, definitely would be shipped to Louisville for the derby.

Keeneland's 10-day meeting at Churchill was ended with yesterday's racing. The track will be idle until Saturday when the regular Churchill Spring meeting opens.

CUBS TO LOSE CATCHER AFTER INJURY TO LEG

CHICAGO, April 22—Clyde McCullough, regular catcher of the Chicago Cubs who fractured his left leg in the third inning of the opening game with the Pittsburgh Pirates, will be lost to the team for five or six weeks, physicians announced today.

"X-ray pictures disclosed an oblique fracture of the left fibula, just above the anklebone, and it probably will be five or six weeks before he can play again," Dr. John F. Davis, Cubs physician, declared.

McCullough was hurt as he stole second base after hitting a single. He made a somersault roll as he slid into the base and apparently caught his spikes, twisting his left leg.

Two other casualties marked the opening game. Eddie Stanky, rookie Cubs' second baseman who twice in his minor league career suffered skull fractures when hit by pitched balls, was struck on the back of the head by one of Rip Sewell's pitches in the first inning and collapsed. He was able to resume playing after first aid.

A few minutes later Huck Geary, rookie Pirate shortstop, crashed into second base in an attempt to break up a double play and twisted his ankle. He was able to resume play after treatment.

Lifetime batting average of Al Simmons, veteran outfielder now with the Boston Red Sox, is .336. And that's for 18 years of service.

PATTY RETURNS TO PEAK FORM WITH 78 SCORE

CHICAGO, April 22—Patty Berg of Minneapolis, national women's golf champion before she turned professional, rejoiced today over shooting a 78 on the Tam O'Shanter course, indicating she had fully recovered from the effects of a Texas automobile accident December 8, 1941.

Miss Berg, who feared the broken knee cap she suffered in the accident might end her golf career, joined with Bill Gordon, home club professional, to win an exhibition match from John Revolta, former national P.G.A. champion, and Mrs. Lillian Krause of Tam O'Shanter.

Miss Berg left for Minneapolis, declaring she expects to compete in the Women's Western Open tournament June 28 at Glen Oak, Chicago.

Eisenhower's headquarters announced. The army commanded by Col. Gen. Dietloff von Arnim lost 25 of a force of 60 to 80 tanks which were thrown into battle against the British First Army of the Medjez-El-Bab sector. Two of the Nazi tanks destroyed were large Mark IV's.

Attack at Night
The assault by at least five battalions of German infantry was unleashed during the night of April 20-21.

"There was heavy fighting in the moonlight with enemy tanks and infantry, but by the first light the enemy was withdrawing, having suffered considerable casualties," the communique said.

About 500 of the Germans were taken prisoner.

Two new major counter-attacks by Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps along the Enfidaville line to the south were repulsed by massed artillery of the British Eighth Army.

The attacks, bringing to six the number of axis counter-thrusts since Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery loosed his latest offensive, were beaten off "with very heavy loss to the enemy," headquarters said.

"Our positions were generally improved and all gains firmly held," the communique added.

Naples Bombed

The Middle East Command today announced heavy bombers of the Royal Air Force bombed the town area and quays at the Italian port of Naples Tuesday night.

Two fires were set near oil installations, the communique said. All the raiders returned safely.

Germany has massed between 7,000,000 and 8,000,000 troops for a new attack on the Russian front, according to the military commentator of the Ankara radio, the Daily Sketch said today.

The Russians themselves were said to be bringing up Siberian troops and other reserves.

"If a clash develops in the next few weeks we will see the most terrible carnage in history," the commentator was quoted as saying.

Reds Hold Firm

German and Soviet troops were locked today in bitter battles in the Kuban valley of the West Caucasus where the Nazis are striving desperately to smash back Russian forces threatening their control of the Black sea naval base of Novorossiisk.

Repeated attacks were unleashed by the Germans against Soviet defenses and fierce aerial duels were fought along the entire battle line.

The Soviet high command said in its noon communique that the Germans were assaulting Russian positions repeatedly, but stated that the Red army met each challenge successfully and was exacting a heavy toll of Nazi troops.

Action in Pacific

A series of harrying attacks by medium and heavy bombers on Japanese invasion bases from the northwestern tip of New Guinea to the northeast end of New Britain was announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

The enemy's only retaliation to the sweeps, carried out yesterday, was the raiding of the Morobe area on New Guinea by a single Jap plane under cover of darkness. Damage was listed as "inconsequential."

In the northeastern sector, a heavy reconnaissance Allied plane shot down one of four enemy interceptors over Rabaul, New Britain. Other heavy units raided the Gasmata airdrome, destroying an enemy bomber on the ground, and started fires in Ubili. Bilau was bombed and strafed along with nearby villages in the Saldor section of New Guinea.

Medium units operating in the northwest sector bombed airfields at Timika and Kaimana in Dutch New Guinea and, with fighters, bombed and strafed buildings, fuel dumps and a float plane at Dobo, in the Aru islands. The village of Wadetek and coastal vessels near Wadanela, both in the Kei islands, and the Walloetoe village in the Tenimber islands also were attacked.

Large fires were started when medium bombers bombed and strafed the enemy-held town of Laga, on Timor.

this country to resort to the same barbaric practices.

Crushing blows against the Nippon empire's military machine by strengthened American fighting forces was considered the best answer to the Japanese warlords' barbarity.

Meanwhile, the state department was working on a record of the case so that those directly and indirectly responsible for the mistreatment and execution of the American flyers can be brought to Justice before a military tribunal as soon as United Nations forces march through the streets of Tokyo.

The view prevailed in high state department quarters that Premier Hideki Tojo, Japan's No. 1 warlord, and other members of the Japanese government must bear the ultimate responsibility for the crime.

While stern punishment is favored for the Japanese officers and men directly responsible for the torture and murder of the flyers, the state department takes the position that responsibility for what President Roosevelt described as "diabolical crimes" rests with the government that permitted them to be committed.

Immediate military trial of all Japanese officials connected directly or indirectly with the crime, from Tojo right on down the line to the firing squad that presumably executed the flyers, is likely to be demanded by the American government when the day of retribution arrives. If Tojo is captured alive and convicted of responsibility for the crime, some American officials advocate death by hanging as punishment.

The state department is redoubling its efforts to try to ascertain the identity of the men executed. Demands for the identity of the men, and for information as to what has happened to the others, are being made through the Swiss government, which represents American interests in Japan.

So far, the Japanese government has failed to give any satisfactory information beyond stating that all the captured flyers were sentenced to death, and that following commutation of the sentence "for the larger number of them," the sentence of death was "applied to certain of the accused." Japanese radio broadcasts have asserted that severe penalties were being imposed on all of them.

Rep. Rankin (D) Miss., summed up congressional opinion by declaring that the "savage" action of the Japanese "ought to be a warning to us that Japan is our permanent and most dangerous enemy from now until the Nippon empire is destroyed."

Republican House Leader Martin said "it is shocking to realize that any nation could be so barbarous as the Japs have indicated by their actions." "It will," he added, "strengthen the determination of the American people to fight this war to complete victory. That action will be avenged."

Rep. Marcantonio, (A-L) of New York, and Rep. Manasco, (D) of Ala., said American forces henceforth should take no Japanese prisoners.

Speaker Rayburn described the Japanese action as a "gruesome thing." "It shows the kind of enemy we are fighting," he said. Branding the incident "the most tragic thing that has come out of this war," Sen. Chandler (D) Ky., said he will press for action for stricter supervision of enemy aliens in the United States.

"The American people will not feel like treating disloyal Japanese in this country well when they are murdering our boys," he added.

man munitions centers, seaports and other military objectives throughout the whole extent of Germany."

The official announcement pointed out that British resources and the scale of delivery of gas has been greatly increased since last year when Churchill on May 10 promised that Britain would smother Germany with gas if Hitler chose to use it as a weapon of warfare.

Necessary precautions against gas attacks on England already have been taken by British authorities. Downing street declared.

The statement took on added significance in view of the warning to the British public only last Tuesday by Secretary for Home Affairs Herbert Morrison not to assume that the probability of a gas attack by the enemy had ended.

Morrison urged the people to make sure that the gas masks issued early in the war still are in good condition.

The inspector general of civil defense told civil defense workers in London only a few weeks ago that there was no reason why the Germans should not use poison gas against Britain.

"The Germans have plenty of it," he declared.

"If Hitler thought he could secure a tactical surprise by using it he certainly would."

FAMOUS SHELL COLLECTOR ENDS VISIT IN CITY

Mrs. F. R. Schwengle, one of the nation's leading conchologists, (shell fanciers and collectors), has returned to her home in Scarsdale, N. Y., after a three day visit with Dr. and Mrs. B. R. Bales. Mrs. Schwengle stopped in Cincinnati after a trip to Dayton where she received an honorary degree of doctor of science from the University of Dayton. Her study of conchology earned her the degree.

Mrs. Schwengle is the wife of the president of the Seagram Corporation. Mr. Schwengle is on leave of absence now from his company, serving as a general in the U. S. army. He was the youngest general in the army during World War I. Dr. Bales said.

The shell fancier, who traded several shells from her collection with Dr. Bales for some of his duplicates, is assistant curator for the Academy of Natural Sciences in Philadelphia.

HUSBAND ASKS DIVORCE

METHODIST MEN TO SPONSOR SCOUT TROOP

Methodist Men's Brotherhood voted Wednesday evening to sponsor a new Boy Scout troop, and named John Magill, Seyfert avenue, as master of the troop. Roscoe Warren, East Union street, will serve as assistant scoutmaster.

Members of the troop committee will include Herschel Hill, chairman; Dan McClain, Hal Dean, Leonard Snodgrass and Dr. William S. Ray.

Approval of the committee followed an address by Earl McVey, area council executive, on need for Boy Scout training.

Forty members attended the meeting and heard an excellent talk by the Rev. J. O. Miller of the Pilgrim church. His subject was "The Value of Influence". Dinner was served by the women of Circle 4 W. S. C. S., under direction of Mrs. Clyde Cook.

HAROLD IMLER FREED

Harold Imler, 24, of East Ohio street, arrested Wednesday on charges of issuing a fraudulent check, was released from custody Thursday evening after the check was paid off and charges were dropped. the traffic pattern formed by eight or ten medium bombers, evidently preparing to land. Ahead was the bay and down to the surface we went, mouths like glue and the target in sight.

About that time I called to Sgt. Bither to bomb the first good target. Lieut. Thadd H. Blanton, of Gainesville, Tex., gave her the needle and I hauled back to gain a little altitude. About that time all hell broke loose in the form of little black puffs of anti-aircraft fire, much too close for comfort. But, the hell with them till we laid our eggs.

Bombs Away!

I leveled off and Bither called "bombs away!" So a quick turn towards some juicy oil tanks and away went the rest of our formation, followed by the rat-rat of the nose gun.

The mission was complete and now to get the heck out of there. The best place was back at zero (lowest possible flying altitude) and down I went. The next 20 minutes were anxious, for the whole area was dotted with A. A. Bill gave me time to turn west and out over the ocean we went, stiff ahead to take a deep breath. Everybody was OK, plane included.

A look back showed plenty of smoke. On our left was more smoke, so Mac and Knobby were also successful. Suddenly to the left ahead we saw two big battle-wagons, Gulp. A few degrees to the right and we plowed on, waiting their guns. But no soap.

Bill gave me courses for both Shushan and the coast. It would be dark as hell in about half an hour but we started up and climbed to 11,000 feet. I told the crew we had no chance of landing and would fly until she quit.

At 11:10 I gave the word and away Duguetto went. Bither, Pound and Blanton following. I patted the old boat and went out the hatch. A swish and a bang and I came down to earth gently, not too hard.

A Chinese soldier conducted us to headquarters. Then, by means of river boats and British cargo planes, we made our way to India and home.

"The Circle", annual publication of Circleville high school, will again be printed this year, but in an abbreviated and streamlined form.

For some time it was feared that no "Circle" would be published, but school authorities and representatives of the senior class decided to go ahead with promotion of the annual.

While the book may not be so large as usual, it will contain all the features which make "The Circle" an excellent year book.

Youngsters active in handling detail work include Walter Leist, editor-in-chief; David Orr, business manager; David Yates and Florence Dresbach, editorial staff; Barbara Helwag, junior representative in the editorial staff; Martha Pile and Julia Work, business staff; David Mader, junior representative on the business staff, and Robert Schumm, art work.

Numerous cartoons will be featured in the annual, Robert

Senator Tom Connally of Texas for his oratorical prowess.

But, the most phenomenal member of Congress is Representative Charles A. Buckley of New York. Tammany Democrat, who never gets his name in the papers, is known to his colleagues as the "phantom Congressman."

Though Buckley is serving his fifth term in the House, there are only a handful of members who know what he looks like.

Strangely enough, Buckley is chairman of a committee, the House Pensions Committee. But it hasn't held one official meeting since the 78th Congress began and some of its members frankly admit they don't know their chairman from Adam's off ox.

The New Yorker also is third ranking Democratic member of the important Public Buildings and Grounds and the Patents Committees, but you get the same story from members of these committees. "We wouldn't know Congressman Buckley if he walked through the door," they say.

Buckley's wrath-like quality are a matter of great mystery to employees on the fourth floor of the new House Office Building, where he has an "office." Room number 1429 is reserved for him, and his name is on the door, but it is scarcely ever seen there. The office is locked day in and day out, and there's no secretary to answer the phone.

However, ghost or no ghost, ephemeral Representative Buckley manages to keep on realistic terms with the payroll.

The taxpayers shell out $6,500 a year for three employees who allegedly work in his Capitol Hill Office: Hyman Korn, $3,500; Raymond Mondy, $1,500, and Fred L. Flynn, $1,500.

It is reported—although nobody can vouch for it—that Korn comes down from New York once or twice a week and shows up at five o'clock in the afternoon to cart away the mail that accumulates inside and outside the door of 1429.

However, repeated phone calls by the MERRY-GO-ROUND to the office at this time have gone unanswered.

Meanwhile, secretaries in adjoining offices are not happy over having to handle the daily delegations of Representative Buckley's constituents, seeking gallery cards and inquiring about the whereabouts of their Congressman.

"I guess there isn't much we can do about it, though," sighed one secretary in a nearby office. "Congressman Buckley just ain't that's all."

BRITISH DEMOCRACY

A great deal is being written on the question "What are we fighting for?" but if the American public had looked in on the Service men's Canteen of the National Press Club on a recent Saturday afternoon, they wouldn't have to be told.

One of the guests was a British naval officer, Rear Admiral S. R. Dight, famed in the British Navy for his toughness in battle, and the salaciousness of his sea yarns. At the Press Club canteen, he more than justified this latter reputation to American soldiers, sailors and marines who flocked around him.

However, it wasn't until the party was about to break up that the Admiral came into his own. Frank Tinsley, of the British Supply Council suggested that the admiral "join in a few songs."

It isn't every day that an admiral, British or American, joins a songfest with gobs and soldiers, but Admiral Dight sang popular American airs with gusto and enthusiasm for half an hour.

Finally an American sailor called out, "Let's sing this one for the admiral—For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

What followed was probably the lustiest rendition of that familiar tune ever heard in the Nation's Capital. More than 100 soldiers, sailors and marines joined in the tribute to Admiral Dight, who looked almost as happy as if he had just won a naval battle. It was one of the things we are fighting for—democracy.

JOE BURNS RECOVERING IN U. S. NAVY HOSPITAL

W. Joe Burns, member of the U. S. navy who has been seriously ill in the Great Lakes, Ill., naval hospital after contracting scarlet fever, is showing definite improvement. Mrs. Burns was informed Wednesday. His temperature is practically normal and he is on a regular diet after being unable to eat for several days. Mr. Burns, an aviation machinist's mate, second class, will be quarantined for two weeks longer. News concerning his improvement was received in a letter written by Mr. Burns.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

Senator Tom Connally of Texas for his oratorical prowess.

But, the most phenomenal member of Congress is Representative Charles A. Buckley of New York, Tammany Democrat, who never gets his name in the papers. He is known to his colleagues as the "phantom Congressman."

Though Buckley is serving his fifth term in the House, there are only a handful of members who know what he looks like.

Strangely enough, Buckley is chairman of a committee, the House Pensions Committee. But it hasn't held one official meeting since the 78th Congress began, and some of its members frankly admit they don't know their chairman from Adam's off ox.

The New Yorker also is third ranking Democratic member of the important Public Buildings and Grounds and the Patents Committees, but you get the same story from members of these committees. "We wouldn't know Congressman Buckley if he walked through the door," they say.

Buckley's wrath-like quality is a matter of great mystery to employees on the fourth floor of the new House Office Building, where he has an "office." Room number 1429 is reserved for him, and his name is on the door, but he is scarcely ever seen there. The office is locked day in and day out, and there's no secretary to answer the phone.

However, ghost or no ghost, ephemeral Representative Buckley manages to keep on realistic terms with the payroll.

The taxpayers shell out $6,500 a year for three employees who allegedly work in his Capitol Hill Office: Hyman Korn, $3,500; Raymond Neary, $1,500, and Fred L. Flynn, $1,500.

It is reported—although nobody can vouch for it—that Korn comes down from New York once or twice a week and shows up at five o'clock in the afternoon to cart away the mail that accumulates inside and outside the door of 1429.

However, repeated phone calls by the MERRY-GO-ROUND to the office at this time have gone unanswered.

Meantime, secretaries in adjoining offices are not happy over having to handle the daily delegations of Representative Buckley's constituents, seeking gallery cards and inquiring about the whereabouts of their Congressman.

"I guess there isn't much we can do about it, though," sighed one secretary in a nearby office. "Congressman Buckley just ain't that's all."

BRITISH DEMOCRACY

A great deal is being written on the question "What are we fighting for?" but if the American public had looked in on the Service men's Canteen of the National Press Club on a recent Saturday afternoon, they wouldn't have to be told.

One of the guests was a British naval officer, Rear Admiral S. R. Dight, famed in the British Navy for his toughness in battle, and the saltiness of his sea yarns. At the Press Club canteen, he more than justified this latter reputation to American soldiers, sailors and marines who flocked around him.

However, it wasn't until the party was about to break up that the Admiral came into his own. Frank Tinsley, of the British Supply Council suggested that the admiral "join in a few songs."

It isn't every day that an admiral, British or American, joins a songfest with gobs and soldiers, but Admiral Dight sang popular American airs with gusto and enthusiasm for half an hour.

Finally an American sailor called out, "Let's sing this one for the admiral—For He's a Jolly Good Fellow!"

What followed was probably the lustiest rendition of that familiar tune ever heard in the Nation's Capital. More than 100 soldiers, sailors and marines joined in the tribute to Admiral Dight, who looked almost as happy as if he had just won a naval battle. It was one of the things we are fighting for—democracy.

JOE BURNS RECOVERING IN U. S. NAVY HOSPITAL

W. Joe Burns, member of the U. S. navy who has been seriously ill in the Great Lakes, Ill., naval hospital after contracting scarlet fever, is showing definite improvement. Mrs. Burns was informed Wednesday. His temperature is practically normal and he is on a regular diet after being unable to eat for several days. Mr. Burns, an aviation machinist's mate, second class, will be quarantined for two weeks longer. News concerning his improvement was received in a letter written by Mr. Burns.

Preparation for the annual is under supervision of Miss Margaret Mattinson.

More for Your Money

Kitty Fissell says — "I think the best buy in my store, the one where the purchaser gets the most for his money is in a Caddy Suit. These suits were bought in 1941, while all wool materials were being used by the manufacturers of civilian clothes. These suits are priced at $32.50 and $38.50. They cannot be duplicated for the duration. They are recognized among men who appreciate "appearance" for their fit and style. There is no undue strain on any part of the trousers, vest or coat. Hence the suit wears longer. With wearing one of our suits comes that feeling of "not being dressed up, but always comfortable and always as well dressed as any man in the world."

VOX POP TO QUANTICO

"From the Halls of Montezuma" will be the theme of the Vox Pop broadcast when Parks Johnson and Warren Hull return to the famous marine training base at Quantico, Va., to interview soldiers of land and sea on Monday, April 26, at 7 p. m., over CBS.

Highlighted in this Vox Pop program will be stories of the vital roles of such heroes as Captain Joseph Foss, marine flying ace who bagged twenty-six enemy aircraft; Major John Smith, credited with thirteen planes at Guadalcanal; Sergeant Al Schmid, blind in combat; and the accomplishments of Major Justice M. Chambers.

Parks Johnson and Warren Hull will talk with Leathernecks who will describe their life from the day they go into boot training and why their arduous schedule is so important to the efficiency and teamwork of the Marine Corps.

Vox Pop listeners will hear typical American boys who have so justly earned the right to say, "The Marines have landed and have the situation well in hand."

Gene Raymond, make a delayed appearance on the "Stage Door Canteen" when they join with Willie Howard and Olyn Landick, the "Hackensack Gossip," on Thursday at 8:30 p. m., over WBSN. Miss MacDonald and Capt. Raymond originally were scheduled to appear two weeks ago, but their engagement was postponed because of Miss MacDonald's illness. Capt. Raymond appears not as an actor, but as an army officer home on furlough, to discuss the outstanding work of the army bombardiers. Bert Lytell presides as officer of the day.

AREA BLACKOUT SCHEDULED FOR EARLY IN MAY

County To Participate
In District Test
Set By OCD

PLANTS MAY BE EXEMPT

Ten Counties Included
In Order Issued At
State Headquarters

Circleville and Pickaway county, praised for their blackout of last Thursday night, can start now to prepare for another test to be conducted the first week in May for a large central Ohio district.

Tentative plans for the sectional blackout were announced Thursday by W. J. Burns, assistant director of the Ohio Civilian Defense Council, in a communication sent to Tom E. Wilson, executive director of the Circleville and Pickaway county Defense Council units.

Mr. Burns did not state the exact date for the blackout, but declared that the first week in May is being given favorable consideration. The definite night is not yet known, and whether or not it will be announced is not known.

Ten Counties Listed

Counties to be included in the sectional blackout in addition to Pickaway will be Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Licking, Franklin, Madison, Fairfield, Hocking and part of Wyandotte.

Announcement of the district blackout was accompanied by a statement that industrial plants in the various counties will not be expected to blackout, but will be permitted to continue operation. Last week all industrial plants in Circleville cooperated, only being required to have their lights off long enough to show state Civilian Defense and War department observers that light could be extinguished in a few minutes' time. Need for all industrial plants to continue operation without let up is being pointed out by Defense Council authorities in permitting them to refrain from participation in the blackout.

Test Welcomed

Local Civilian Defense officials welcome another chance to prove the efficiency of their organization. During the blackout last week almost every detail was handled in perfect fashion. A few flaws crept into the blackout, but those are expected to be ironed out before the next test.

Manner in which the local councils operated drew profound praise from Civilian Defense and War department observers who came here to check cooperation on the part of private citizens and efficiency on the part of the Defense Council's several hundred volunteer workers.

Meeting of Defense Council officials to discuss the coming blackout will likely be called soon.

FARM BUREAU'S ROLL OF HONOR PUT ON DISPLAY

"Roll of Honor", a tribute to members of Pickaway county Farm Bureau-affiliated families who are now in the nation's armed service, has been placed on the walls of the Farm Bureau office, East Main street.

The honor roll includes names of 108 Pickaway countians who are in the nation's service. Highest ranking officer on the honor roll is Colonel Harry D. Jackson, stationed at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., as camp surgeon.

As additional sons from Farm Bureau families go into service their names will be added to the honor roll.

AREA BLACKOUT SCHEDULED FOR EARLY IN MAY

County To Participate
In District Test
Set By OGD

PLANTS MAY BE EXEMPT

Ten Counties Included
In Order Issued At
State Headquarters

Circleville and Pickaway county, praised for their blackout of last Thursday night, can start now to prepare for another test to be conducted the first week in May for a large central Ohio district.

Tentative plans for the sectional blackout were announced Thursday by W. J. Burns, assistant director of the Ohio Civilian Defense Council, in a communication sent to Tom E. Wilson, executive director of the Circleville and Pickaway county Defense Council units.

Mr. Burns did not state the exact date for the blackout, but declared that the first week in May is being given favorable consideration. The definite night is not yet known, and whether or not it will be announced is not known.

Ten Counties Listed
Counties to be included in the sectional blackout in addition to Pickaway will be Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Licking, Franklin, Madison, Fairfield, Hocking and part of Wyandotte.

Announcement of the district blackout was accompanied by a statement that industrial plants in the various counties will not be expected to blackout, but will be permitted to continue operation. Last week all industrial plants in Circleville cooperated, only being required to have their lights off long enough to show state Civilian Defense and War department observers that light could be extinguished in a few minutes' time. Need for all industrial plants to continue operation without let up is being pointed out by Defense Council authorities in permitting them to refrain from participation in the blackout.

Test Welcomed
Local Civilian Defense officials welcome another chance to prove the efficiency of their organization. During the blackout last week almost every detail was handled in perfect fashion. A few flaws crept into the blackout, but those are expected to be ironed out before the next test.

Manner in which the local councils operated drew profound praise from Civilian Defense and War department observers who came here to check cooperation on the part of private citizens and efficiency on the part of the Defense Council's several hundred volunteer workers.

Meeting of Defense Council officials to discuss the coming blackout will likely be called soon.

FARM BUREAU'S ROLL OF HONOR PUT ON DISPLAY

"Roll of Honor", a tribute to members of Pickaway county Farm Bureau-affiliated families who are now in the nation's armed service, has been placed on the walls of the Farm Bureau office, East Main street.

The honor roll includes names of 108 Pickaway countians who are in the nation's service. Highest ranking officer on the honor roll is Colonel Harry D. Jackson, stationed at Camp Breckenridge, Ky., as camp surgeon.

As additional sons from Farm Bureau families go into service their names will be added to the honor roll.

QUINCELS HAVE SON

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Quincel of 156 West Water street announce birth of a son Monday at their home. Mr. Quincel is in the U. S. army.

EASTER TIME is DRESS UP TIME

So That Means New Shoes. Even though you may not be able to get the exact kind and color you want, you should have a new pair of shoes.
